(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The retirement of Justice Louis D. Brandeis from the supreme court today brought a chorus of senatorial demands to-day that a westerner be appointed to the seat he held for nearly 23 years.

Only one member of the court, western legislators pointed out, comes from beyond the Mississippi river. He is Justice Pierce Butler of Minnesota.

One-Sentence Note.

The 82-year-old Brandeis, whose shock of unruly iron-gray hair made him a picturesque figure on the bench, made known his decision to retire in a one-sentence note to President Roosevelt late yesterday.

An hour before, the venerable jurist had stepped down from his high-backed chair in a crowded courtroom for the last time. As he disappeared with his colleagues behind the heavy draperies, he gave no public indication that he never would return to his place at the left of Chief Justice Hughes.

The president, recuperating at the White House from the gripe, promptly penned a letter of regret, in which he said:

"The country needed you through all these years, and I hope you will realize, as your old friends do, how unanimous the nation has been in its gratitude to you."

Congressional tributes to Brandeis were general in contrast to the furor aroused over his appointment by President Wilson in 1916. He was the first Jew to sit on the court, and his critics had pictured him as a radical and a violent partisan. He was more than four months before the senate confirmed his nomination, 47 to 22.

Upheld New Deal.

In his long service, Brandeis constantly enunciated the rights of the common man and vigorously supported social experimentation. He voted to sustain much of the New Deal legislation which a ma-

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—Police questioned a 44-year-old Indianapolis man today in their investigation of a slaying of Mrs. Carrie Leah Romig, 55, Jan. 17.

Officers withheld the man's name. Chief of Police Michael F. Morrissey said he was arrested on a vagrancy charge after William R. Butsch, 57, of Louisville, Ky., had named him as the man from whom he obtained valuable jewels that were pawned later.

These jewels, Morrissey said, have been identified as having belonged to Mrs. Romig.

Coroner Says Suicide Victim Sent
Death Note to Friend.

ORRVILLE—(AP)—A verdict of suicide was returned today by Wayne County Coroner Adrian Hartler in the death of Frank L. Strauss, 60, found hanging in an unused garage at the rear of his Orrville home.

Strauss, for many years cashier of the old Orrville National bank, wrote a letter to Karl Ludwig, an insurance agent, telling where his body would be found. Ludwig led a party of investigators to the garage.

PIUS ENTOMBED AT ST. PETER'S

in Cathedral Crypt.

(By Associated Press)
VATICAN CITY—Pope Pius XI was carried to his final resting place beneath the floor of the great Cathedral of St. Peter today.

His tomb was the subterranean grotto of the Basilica, under the great central altar where only a Pope celebrates mass.

At this altar, during his 17-year pontificate, Pius had officiated at the church's most solemn and moving ceremonies. Hundreds of thousands of the faithful had watched him there—first in robust health and recently weakened by illness as he performed his duties as Holy Father of the Catholic world.

Today's entombment ritual, conducted behind closed doors, contrasted strikingly with the pomp of the living Pope's appearances in St. Peter's. The great crowds of those appearances—often numbering more than 50,000—were missing.

There were comparatively few invited mourners—cardinals, bishops and other prelates of the papal court, diplomats and papal aristocrats.

On Friday Premier Mussolini and the Italian royal family will pay tribute to the Pope who re-established peace between the Vatican and the Italian state.

The Fascist grand council, King Vittorio Emanuele, the royal court, and the diplomatic corps accredited to the king, including the United States Ambassador, William Phillips, will attend mass for Pius XI on the day, proclaimed one of national mourning.

Measures Introduced to Carry
Out Revamping of Liquor
Division, Tax Board.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS—Faced by a mountain of bills, the Ohio legislature cleared the tracks today for enacting Gov. John W. Bricker's program to reorganize major departments in the state government.

Administration measures to revamp the tax commission, conservation division and the liquor department reached the legislature in a flood of proposed laws on the final day for "free" introduction of bills.

Revamp Purchasing System.
Bills for revising the state's purchasing system and welfare department also were offered while "ripper" bills affecting the unemployment compensation system, parole board and civil service commission already were on their way to likely passage.

Temperance forces entered the legislative picture, meanwhile, with a bill under sponsorship of the Anti-Saloon league to make "bone-dry" all rural sections and to impose severe restrictions on beer and liquor in all municipalities.

House members, in a prolonged session yesterday afternoon and last night, poured 322 bills into the legislative machinery bringing up to 673 the total offered this session, compared with 694 bills in that chamber two years ago at a comparable date.

Senators contented themselves with a single night session which produced 66 new bills for a session total of 196, considerably below the 331 mark set up by the 1937 senate at the same stage.

Planned for Efficiency.
Governor Bricker's theory that more efficient and economical government would result from centralizing both authority and responsibility in a single administrative head, rather than a commission or board, dominated the reorganization proposals.

A tax commissioner would take over the duties of the present four-member commission while a new three-member board would be

DETROIT—(AP)—The Homer Martin faction of the split United Automobile Workers today won a court battle after which Circuit Judge Dewitt H. Merriam decided property and finances of the UAW's Plymouth local rightfully belonged to the Martinites.

The CIO-allied faction had asked the books, records and money to be turned over to them because of "their special value to the plaintiffs."

Judge Merriam declared the supreme court held a circuit court cannot rule on a "special value" suit without a trial of the case on its merits.

City Sewer Survey Assured as Ruling Releases $7,900 Balance

Just to Remind You, on Valentine Day
That the World Is Still Full of Romance

Sewage Plant Operations Hit New Peak In Efficiency

99 Per Cent of Sewage Given Full Treatment Last Month, Purification 91 Per Cent, Report Says.

Mansfield's sewage treatment plant operated at almost perfection both in volume of sewage treated and in the percentage of purification during January, the monthly report of operations submitted to city council today by Plant Superintendent J. R. Turner revealed.

The report showed that 99 per cent of all sewage entering the plant in January was given full treatment, as compared with 97 per cent during December and only 17 per cent during January, 1938.

Purification Sets Record.
It also showed that sewage given full treatment had a purification percentage of 91 per cent, a new all time high. The previous purification percentage record was established in December when 88 per cent was recorded. During January of last year 44 per cent was purified.

A total of 78 million gallons of sewage entered the plant in January, Turner said. Of that amount 77 million gallons were given full treatment. Only one million gallons were by-passed and then only after it had received a 50 per cent treatment in the primary system.

Although power costs at the plant showed an 80 per cent increase over January, 1938, sewage gas production, which Turner has repeatedly recommended be used to generate power to effect a cut in operating costs, showed an increase of 850,000 cubic feet during January.

The report showed that 1,788,800 cubic feet of gas were produced in January as compared with 1,688,730 cubic feet in December.

Turner reported that the electricity that could have been generated by the sewage gas would have amounted to $538 which would have reduced the January power bill of $673 to $135.

'Win in '40' Fight Stirs Republicans

'United Front' Program
Outlined By G. O. P.
Lincoln Speakers.

(By United Press)
NEW YORK—The Republican party, admitted moribund until last November, presented to the nation today what its leaders asserted was a "united front" infused with "a great spirit of fight for 1940."

Leaders looked back on last night's Lincoln Day celebration here, one of the largest and most militant gatherings of Republicans in years, and predicted a return to power in the next presidential election after eight lean years.

Former President Herbert Hoover, who keynoted the six-hour "victory through unity" party with the assertion that only a return to Republicanism could save the nation from "inflation and dictatorship," expressed delight today with the reaction his words evoked.

Still stimulated by the repeated and sustained bursts of applause and cheers with which nearly 2,000 white-tied and colorfully gowned Republican men and women greeted his 3,000-word address, the party's chief spokesman said:

"It was a great and enthusiastic meeting. It bodes a great spirit of fight for 1940."

He decried the "pseudo-liberalism of the New Deal" which he called "that philosophy of conscious or unconscious left-wingness" he ridiculed the Roosevelt administration's "new school of budgetary magic" he warned that "these monetary and financial policies may defeat the nation."

Not since the time of Abraham Lincoln, he said, has the nation been "more evenly divided and consumed" and not since the emancipator's death has a political party "faced such an opportunity for service."

Asserting that the Republican party would produce "a program of reform and forward action," Hoover pointed to last November's

200 Southern Ohio Officers
Capture Holdup Pair.

WILMINGTON, O.—(AP)—A search by 200 southwestern Ohio law officers ended today with capture of two Columbus youths accused of kidnapping and robbing a Wilmington insurance agent and of holding up two Cincinnati gas-line stations.

Everett Marks, 20, and Harold Williams, 20, of Columbus, were captured after a general alarm had been broadcast. Roads were blocked throughout the night.

The blockade was ordered shortly after O. C. Minton, of Wilmington, reported he had been kidnapped and robbed. He said he was about to enter his automobile here when two youths pressed a gun against him and got into his car.

They drove several miles to a point near Silgo, O., he said. There he was robbed of $3 and forced out of his car. The two youths drove away toward Cincinnati.

Cincinnati police reported that they held up two gasoline stations there.

Highway Department Drops 85, Then Appoints 80 Republicans

Eighty-five state highway maintenance employees, including eight in Richland county, were dismissed today in the Ashland division of the highway department, and 80 Republican appointees were added to the payroll.

Murray D. Shaffer, division engineer, said the dismissal order, effective immediately, would be followed by another about March 1. All of the dismissed workers here were laborers, he said.

Richland county's maintenance staff of 33 workers will not be reduced by the dismissal, since eight men were employed to replace the discharged employees. Most of whom were appointed during the Davey administration.

Shaffer said the dismissals were distributed throughout the eight counties in the Ashland division, with Richland county's maintenance staff unchanged in number because the department already was undermanned.

Pending action of the state legislature on a highway department re-organization bill, the resident engineer's office in the Walpole building, Mansfield, had been closed today.

ENDS LENGTHY SEARCH

Council Committees to Take Up Engineering Problem
at Session Tonight.

Funds to complete a long sought survey of Mansfield's sanitary sewer system were definitely assured today and it remained only for city officials to name an engineering staff to do the work.

This followed a ruling this morning by City Solicitor Marion D. Ward that a $7,930 balance in a PWA sewage disposal fund, created three years ago by a $200,000 bond issue and a PWA grant to build the present treatment plant, was available for engineering services.

Meet State Officials

Ward said he informed officials before they left for Columbus today where they were to confer with the state health department concerning the city's sewage disposal, that the funds could be appropriated for the survey.

As a result of the ruling it appeared that a long period of uncertainty during which the state health department repeatedly requested a comprehensive sewer report was definitely at an end.

It is expected that council's sewer and health committees with Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist will consider the engineering of the survey at a meeting tonight in the mayor's office.

First Step In Revamping.
Hunter said the group would meet to discuss the engineering of the survey as the first step towards the complete rehabilitation of the entire sanitary sewer system.

He has already requested that council consider seeking a bond issue to finance the rehabilitation of the entire system at a cost estimated from between $50,000 and $100,000.

Hunter and Nist accompanied by C. N. Shultz of council's finance committee went to Columbus to confer with Fred W. Waring, chief engineer for the state department of health on dispensing with the service of a technical adviser at the sewage plant.

They also planned to discuss in detail the matter of conducting the sewer survey.

March 12 To See Start Of Civic Music Campaign

Plans for the third annual membership campaign of the Mansfield Civic Music association were announced today following a meeting of a committee of officers at the Leland hotel yesterday.

The campaign will open on March 12, instead of March 20 as originally planned. Headquarters will again be in the Ohio Fuel Gas company offices, and Mrs. Mercedes Walker, New York, will represent the Civic Music association in the campaign.

The campaign will be in charge of the association's incoming officers who will be elected at a meeting to be held sometime the latter part of the week. While the nominating committee, headed by W. L. Miller, has not yet reported, it was expected that Rev. David N. Roller, now president of the association, would be asked to serve a second term.

The 1938-39 program is providing Mansfield with artists of national and international reputation. Horstene Monath, New York pianist, gave the concert and while Marian Anderson, the great Negro contralto, appeared here Jan. 31, the final concert of the season will be Zimbalist, internationally famous violinist, on Feb. 23.

More than 800 membership tickets were sold for this year's series and an effort will be made to top that figure this year, officials said today.

Water Department Reports Year's Profit of $11,322

Nazis, Dedicated Ship, Bid for Sea Power

SURPLUS HITS $34,283, NEW ALL-TIME HIGH

Report Shows Increased Water Consumption But Drop in Costs, Collections.

With an increased daily water consumption and decreased operating costs, Mansfield's municipal water department finished 1938 with a net profit of $11,322.81, the annual report of the department prepared by Supt. James Herlihy showed today.

This figure boosted the water departments unencumbered balance to $34,283. The department began 1938 with a balance of $22,960.

This is the greatest surplus ever built up by the water department, records indicate, despite noticeable reductions in collections during the past year.

During 1938 the department collected $145,909.07 from all sources as compared with $151,105 for the previous year.

Expenditures, however, decreased from $133,474 in 1937 to $128,302 during the past year.

Effects Power Savings.

A revised schedule of operation of delivery pumps at the Hedges station that eliminated one electric pump, but still placed in operation two wells that had heretofore not been used effected savings in the department's power bills of $3,212 Herlihy said.

A record collection in delinquent accounts which reduced outstanding bills by $7,395 also was attributed as another of the reasons for the profit by Herlihy.

At the beginning of 1938 delinquent water rents and miscellaneous accounts outstanding on the books amounted to approximately $24,000. This figure was reduced to $15,000 as of Jan. 1, 1939, the lowest in recent years, the records show.

The department also placed into operation during the year the new $75,000 Woodland water improvement, which Herlihy reported was operating "satisfactorily."

'Boxcar Corrigan' Starves For Week, Heads For Home

PEABODY, Mass. — (AP) — Refreshed by sleep and food, Russell C. Donaldson, 15, the "boxcar Corrigan," prepared today to return to his Connellsville, Pa., home after a harrowing week in a locked freight car which he thought was carrying him from Ohio to sunny Florida.

Russell explained to Peabody police that he saw two cars in the freight yards at Uhrichsville, O., last Feb. 5—one billed for Florida, the other for Peabody. During the night he leaped aboard—the wrong car and went the wrong way.

For two days he had been too weak from lack of food and water to cry out and it was only by chance that a truck driver unsealed the car of drainage pipes last night.

In Connellsville, Russell's father, Charles E. Donaldson, chucked over the escape and said he would send anything necessary to get the boy home.

"He's a good boy, but he got mad when I wouldn't let him go to see his girl friend every night of the week and just left home."

MRS. NIXON, 87, TAKEN BY DEATH

Life-Long Resident of County Dies After Brief Illness.

Mrs. Mina Holmes Nixon, 87, a lifelong resident of the county, died at the home of Mrs. Mary Brown, Ashland road, with whom she resided, Monday evening after a brief illness.

Mrs. Nixon was born March 1, 1851, the daughter of Joseph and Betsy Hale Holmes, pioneer residents of the county. There are no immediate survivors. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church and Sunday school.

The body was removed to the Jones funeral home where services will be conducted by Rev. Hayes M. Braker of the Park Avenue Baptist church in the absence of Rev. David N. Roller of the First Presbyterian church at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Induction ceremonies were in charge of club officers and H. D. Bishop, adviser.

Up and Down THE STREET

Probably the only one-man magazine issued in Mansfield is the Bunny Eye, published by Bobbie Faulkner, 72 Harter avenue. Bobbie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Faulkner, puts out about 20 copies a month, all neatly typewritten, illustrated by hand, and bound together. It has a bit of poetry, a children's page, illustrated with an elephant, a little philosophy, the birthdays of the month, a religious page with a cartoon (hand drawn), neighborhood news and a page of recipes. This month there is an attractive Valentine cover in red crayon. He even has a "foreign correspondent," a Miss Peggy Tompkins, of Berkeley, O. Bobbie is a student at Prospect school.

Every day is going to be "Fair Day" for William Wiley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wiley, Shelby, at the New York World's fair next summer. The Shelby boy, who is stationed at the U. S. Naval station at Newport, R. I., was recently assigned to serve with the Navy department at the exposition. Wiley is a bugler.

While men stood by and watched a bulldog try to climb out of the fountain in Central park about noon today, a woman leaned far over the edge of the fountain and pulled the animal out. The dog toppled into the empty fountain and was impaled for a while by the slippery walls which defied his attempts to gain a foothold and climb over the top. He appeared none the worse for his tumble.

Next to a jumping toothache there probably is no more acute pain than that of having a speaker fall you at the last moment, and Floyd Dent, Boy Scout executive, went through that "agony" this morning. As program chairman of today's Rotary meeting, Dent had obtained George Green, executive of the Greater Cleveland Scout area, to address the club, but two hours before the luncheon he received word that Green was ill and would be unable to come to Mansfield. After the first acute "pangs," Dent got busy and called Rev. Philip Auer, pastor of Peace Lutheran church of Gallon and past state governor of Kiwanis clubs. He accepted the invitation and saved the day for Dent.

PLANS PARLEY

Enforcement Chief to Study Kyle Clean-up Plea.

Any immediate "clean-up" of the Mansfield liquor dispensing set-up will not be started by state enforcement officers until E. S. Cullison, chief of the division of enforcement with Wellington T. Leonard, of the Ohio Liquor Control commission on the matter.

Cullison told The News-Journal today that he had not yet seen the request sent to Leonard by Councilman George C. Kyle that a "cleaning-up" be sent to Mansfield, but that he intended to confer with Leonard on the matter this afternoon.

He promised, however, that co-operation of the enforcement division could be expected on any matter that was under its jurisdiction.

Kyle last week appealed to the board to send a "crew" to Mansfield to enforce its regulations here, particularly in regard to the license quota.

Kyle contends that there are more licenses in Mansfield than prescribed under the liquor board's regulations.

ASSEMBLY EYES O. S. U. INQUIRY

Legislative Leaders Request 'Red' Investigators for Reports on Probe.

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS — A committee of Ohio State university trustees named to investigate reports of un-American activities on the campus was asked today to submit transcripts of its hearings daily to Ohio legislative leaders.

Sen. Frank E. Whittemore, Republican floor leader of the upper chamber, said he had requested the transcripts from Carlton S. Dargusch, chairman of the trustee inquiry body.

Dargusch, asserting that "this will be no whitewash," said hearings probably would be opened Thursday or Friday. The committee, composed of Dargusch, H. S. Atkinson and Dr. C. J. Altmaier, was asked by Board Chairman Harry S. Caton to report by April 1.

Whittemore said last night that a resolution calling for a legislative investigation had not been acted upon because it lacked definite charges.

The resolution was offered at the behest of the Franklin county council of the American Legion following an announcement in a student publication of "Marxism" classes, conducted by students on the campus, at which Cleveland Communists had been invited to speak.

The Legion subsequently was back-dropped by 24 civic and fraternal organizations here and by Legion posts in eight central Ohio counties.

JAIL 2 IN ATTEMPT TO EXTORT FROM BENEFACTOR OF FELONS

(By International News Service) ST. PAUL, Minn. — (INS) — Two men, one of them an ex-convict, were to be arraigned today on charges of attempting to extort $15,000 from Charles A. Ward, millionaire advertising executive and benefactor of former felons.

An ex-convict himself, Ward emerged from federal prison to become president of Brown and Bigelow, a large advertising specialty house where he employs about 50 former convicted criminals.

He has helped scores of others with money and to get jobs. Among the pleas for help he receives almost daily was a recent letter asking for funds but which closed with the threat of exposing him as having had a part in the three-year-old killing of Walter Liggett, crusading Minneapolis editor, unless the money was paid.

Ward turned the letter over to police and a trap was laid. An envoy carried a dummy package to the place designated for paying the sum and police stationed there seized Matthew W. Stegbauer, 31, who was released six months ago from Leavenworth penitentiary where Ward served a year in 1923 on a narcotics conviction, and Harold A. McAvoy, 29, a former law student and whiskey salesman.

Paul Conteras, 40, also arrested later was absolved by a material witness.

Stegbauer and McAvoy were said by police to have confessed they had no evidence linking Ward with the unsolved Liggett case.

An adventurer in his youth, Ward fought with Pancho Villa in Mexico and was convicted on the drug charge upon his return to the United States. He claims the case was a frameup. In prison he met the millionaire Bigelow, serving time for income tax evasion, and upon his release obtained a job with the company.

CHAPTER XXV

They smiled at each other. Alix said, "You'll have to be very good indeed but I don't think you are quite that good."

The next morning Jay saw her swimming in the clear blue water of the pool, swimming away from him.

When she dressed for dinner that evening, Bernice came in.

"Did you meet Jay? Isn't he attractive?"

The motion of the silver brush ceased. Looking through the mirror, Alix's eyes were amused.

"Yes, very attractive but he gave you away. He said he'd been appointed to make me forget somebody."

Bernice put her arm around her.

"I'm guilty, darling. But don't scold me for thinking of you. I know, well-born, wealthy and handsome. I know he isn't as handsome as Kurt. But give Jay a chance. Alix. He came down from New York just to meet you. I'm not matchmaking, dear. I'd just like to see you interested in some young man."

Music from the club house drifted out to the veranda where Alix's silver dress glistened in the pale light, where bronzed Jay Harvey stood over her.

"You don't drink or smoke, Alix. What do you do?"

"Neither do I play golf nor ride nor drive a car. When you were learning to do those things, Jay, I was learning to take shorthand at so many words a minute."

"So Bernice told me. I'll be here about a week and I'll teach you how to play golf and drive a car and ride. I'm generous but not too generous. I'll expect something in return."

"What, for instance?"

He smiled. "Just don't treat me as if I were ten miles away. You weren't dancing with me a little while ago. You were dancing with—whomever he is. Why doesn't he do something about it? Where are his eyes? If you were crazy about me."

He put his arm around her. "Forget him. You were like a sculptured girl today, sitting beside the pool. And my imagination, which never needs much encouragement, began to see us together a lot, here, in New York, and in Palm Beach next winter. Does that sound as good to you as it does to me or—shall we go in and dance some more?"

"Let's dance some more. I want to dance with my brother later. He's teaching him. When I go over to the cottage, I usually find the radio turned on and Tod walking all over Nancy's little feet and both of them laughing at his clumsiness."

With her head on his shoulder, she closed her eyes. But it was not bronzed, good-looking Jay Harvey with whom she was dancing. It was Kurt, and time had rolled back, and it was that snowy night in March the first time she had seen him and had hoped that by summer they would never be separated again.

Outside the door of her room Jay said, "It's been a swell night and a swell day, Alix." He put her hand to his lips. "I can try, can't I? And I can think about Palm Beach in the winter and dancing with you in several places in New York. Say you."

"I like you, Jay."

"Good. You'll like me better. And tomorrow morning after a swim you're going to get your first lesson in driving. Good night, darling."

As she went into her room and took the light silver wrap from her shoulders, she thought, "By September I'll have to know whether it's going to be Chicago and marriage with Eddie or Palm Beach and New York and Jay and young men like Jay."

Alix saw Jay Harvey to the station ten days later.

"Thank you," she said, "for teaching me to drive, to play golf, and to ride. It's been a merry ten days, hasn't it, Jay?"

"And you've been a very apt pupil. But all the things I taught you are for Palm Beach next winter."

She smiled. "I don't know about that. Good-bye, Jay."

He took her hand. "You've been a great little pal, darling. But think about Palm Beach and think about me. And you might even try thinking about—us."

Don and Bernice and another couple were playing bridge in the drawing-room when she returned to the hall and went upstairs to her own room and went out on the balcony and stood in the cool darkness. And again, as she had so many times, she thought that in spite of the "Lutetians" kindness and generosity she was alone and useless and alien in their world.

And again though she tried to face her future honestly, there was still too much chaos in her mind and feelings. "I have a few weeks yet to make up my mind whether or not to marry a boy I don't love but a boy who is, next to Kurt, best for me. Oh, but why do I think of Kurt? He's married. He hasn't tried to see any of us. Why does he always have to come between me and the plans I try to make for myself?"

The next day Bernice announced that she and Don were going to a northern resort for three weeks. To Alix she said, "You're going too, darling. If you think we're going to leave you alone again and added, smiling, as she left the room, 'Jay will be there.'"

They left within the week and motored north, arriving late one night at a large hotel at a fashionable summer colony by the sea. Alix's room overlooked the sea and when Bernice kissed her good night and said, "You're going to have a marvelous time, darling," Alix went to the French windows and opened them and stood very still looking at the sea.

Funny, she thought, that neither time nor distance altered that one thing in her heart—her love for Kurt. That was something that nothing or no one could ever take away from her, though her life was different and moved at a fast, unpredictable pace now.

What would happen here? Jay was here, gay and charming and lightly in love with her. Jay and other young men. And Bernice, because she loved her, wanted for her a brilliant and successful marriage. She would consider her job incomplete until that was accomplished. Her trip from home, far from Kurt, far from scenes that reminded her of him.

They had breakfast in the large, cool dining room.

Bernice said, "Don and I used to come here often and know scores of people here. We're going to look up some people after breakfast. Do you want to come with us, Alix, or would you rather go swimming? You'll probably see Jay on the beach. His mother is one of the people upon whom I'm going to call. She has a house here." Then she laughed at Don.

"Of course Don thinks Mrs. Harvey is one of the most formidable women he's ever known. But she's charming, really."

"Good. You'll like me better. And tomorrow morning after a swim you're going to get your first lesson in driving. Good night, darling."

As she went into her room and took the light silver wrap from her shoulders, she thought, "By September I'll have to know whether it's going to be Chicago and marriage with Eddie or Palm Beach and New York and Jay and young men like Jay."

Alix said, "I think I'll swim—if you don't mind."

Wearing a blue satin bathing suit with a kerchief tied beneath her chin, she was sitting on the white sand when Jay found her. There was no mistaking the delight in the gay, dark eyes.

"Alix!" And dropped on the sand beside her. "When . . . Where . . . Oh, but that doesn't matter. You're here!" He laughed. "And there's another point. How am I going to keep you to myself?"

"How do you know you want to?"

Suddenly his eyes were gay no longer. Looking at her directly, he said, "I've known I wanted to keep you to myself ever since I saw you sitting on the edge of the pool at Ivy House. You were the loveliest girl I'd ever seen. But later I learned that your loveliness wasn't the most important thing about you but your, well, your honesty, your sweetness . . ."

He chuckled. "You'll be no stranger here. I've told everybody about you. You see, I know that that night in the station wasn't good-bye. It just couldn't have been! I knew my luck had to hold out a little while longer."

GET 17 TONS

Relief Families Receive Wide Variety of Food in January.

More than 17 tons of food was distributed free to Richland county relief families in January by the federal surplus commodities administration, the monthly report to county commissioners showed today.

The largest single item of food was flour, with 15,285 pounds, or more than seven tons, allocated to indigent families.

Other supplies distributed in January included 9,632 cans of grapefruit juice, 1,328 pounds of beans, 3,514 pounds of prunes, 1,788 pounds of raisins, 1,969 pounds of peaches, 3,224 pounds of cereal, and 7,080 pounds of corn meal.

Water Department Reports Year's Profit of $11,322

SURPLUS HITS
$34,283, NEW
ALL-TIME HIGH*Report Shows Increased Water
Consumption But Drop in Costs, Collections.

With an increased daily water consumption and decreased operating costs, Mansfield's municipal water department finished 1938 with a net profit of $11,322.81, the annual report of the department prepared by Supt. James Herlihy showed today.

This figure boosted the water department's unencumbered balance to $34,283. The department began 1938 with a balance of $22,960.

This is the greatest surplus ever built up by the water department, records indicate, despite noticeable reductions in collections during the past year.

During 1938 the department collected $145,909.07 from all sources as compared with $151,105 for the previous year.

Expenditures, however, decreased from $133,474 in 1937 to $128,302 during the past year.

Effects Power Savings.

A revised schedule of operation of delivery pumps at the Hedges station that eliminated one electric pump, but still placed in operation two wells that had heretofore not been used effected savings in the department's power bills of $3,212 Herlihy said.

A record collection in delinquent accounts which reduced outstanding bills by $7,358 also was attributed as another of the reasons for the profit by Herlihy.

At the beginning of 1938 delinquent water rents and miscellaneous accounts outstanding on the books amounted to approximately $24,000. This figure was reduced to $15,000 as of Jan. 1, 1939, the lowest in recent years, the records show.

The department also placed into operation during the year the new $75,000 Woodland water improvement, which Herlihy reported, was operating "satisfactorily."

'Boxcar Corrigan' Starves For Week, Heads For Home

PEABODY, Mass. — (AP) — Refreshed by sleep and food, Russell C. Donaldson, 15, the "boxcar Corrigan," prepared today to return to his Connellsville, Pa. home after a harrowing week in a locked freight car which he thought was carrying him from Ohio to sunny Florida.

Russell explained to Peabody police that he saw two cars in the freight yards at Uhrichsville, O., last Feb. 5—one billed for Florida, the other for Peabody. During the night he leaped aboard—the wrong car and went the wrong way.

For two days he had been too weak from lack of food and water to cry out and it was only by chance that a truck driver unsealed the car of drainage pipes last night.

In Connellsville, Russell's father, Charles E. Donaldson, chuckled over the escapade and said he would send anything necessary to get the boy home.

"He's a good boy, but he got mad when I wouldn't let him go to see his girl friend every night of the week and just left home."

MRS. NIXON, 87, TAKEN BY DEATH

Life-Long Resident of County Dies After Brief Illness.

Mrs. Mina Holmes Nixon, 87, a lifelong resident of the county, died at the home of Mrs. Mary Brown, Ashland road, with whom she resided, Monday evening after a brief illness.

Mrs. Nixon was born March 1, 1851, the daughter of Joseph and Betsy Hale Holmes, pioneer residents of the county. There are no immediate survivors. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church and Sunday school.

The body was removed to the Jones funeral home where services will be conducted by Rev. Hayes M. Braker of the Park Avenue Baptist church in the absence of Rev. David N. Roller of the First Presbyterian church at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Legislative Leaders Request 'Red' Investigators for Reports on Probe.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A committee of Ohio State university trustees named to investigate reports of un-American activities on the campus was asked today to submit transcripts of its hearings daily to Ohio legislative leaders.

Sen. Frank E. Whitmore, Republican floor leader of the upper chamber, said he had requested the transcripts from Carlton S. Dargusch, chairman of the trustees inquiry body.

Dargusch, asserting that "this will be no whitewash," said hearings probably would be opened Thursday or Friday.

The committee, composed of Dargusch, H. S. Atkinson and Dr. C. J. Altmaier, was asked by Board Chairman Harry S. Caton to report by April 1.

Whitmore said last night that a resolution calling for a legislative investigation had not been acted upon because it lacked definite charges.

The resolution was offered at the behest of the Franklin county council of the American Legion following an announcement in a student publication of "Marxism" classes, conducted by students on the campus, at which Cleveland Communists had been invited to speak.

The Legion subsequently was backed by 24 civic and fraternal organizations here and by Legion posts in eight central Ohio counties.

Anthony Dailey Stricken at Home Near Bellville.

BELLVILLE — Anthony Dailey, 80, who resided four miles south of Bellville, died at his home today after a brief illness. He was a lifelong resident of Jefferson township, and is survived by a brother, David of Clay township, and a sister, Mrs. Orange Hamilton of Jefferson township. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

JAIL 2 IN ATTEMPT TO EXTORT FROM BENEFACTOR OF FELONS

(By International News Service) ST. PAUL, Minn. — (AP) — Two men, one of them an ex-convict, were to be arraigned today on charges of attempting to extort $15,000 from Charles A. Ward, millionaire advertising executive and benefactor of former felons.

An ex-convict of former felons emerged from federal prison to become president of Brown and Bigelow, a large advertising specialty house where he employs about 50 former convicted criminals.

He has helped scores of others with money and to get jobs. Among the pleas for help he receives almost daily was a recent letter asking for funds but which closed with the threat of exposing him as having had a part in the three-year-old killing of Walter Liggett, crusading Minneapolis editor, unless the money was paid.

Ward turned the letter over to police and a trap was laid. An envoy carried a dummy package to the place designated for paying the sum and police stationed there seized Mathew W. Stegbauer, 31, who was released six months ago from Leavenworth penitentiary where Ward served a year in 1923 on a narcotics conviction, and Harold A. McAvoy, 29, a former law student and whiskey salesman.

Paul Contreras, 40, also arrested later was absolved by the two but kept in custody as a maternal witness.

Stegbauer and McAvoy were said by police to have confessed they had no evidence linking Ward with the unsolved Liggett case.

An adventurer in his youth, Ward fought with Pancho Villa in Mexico and was convicted on the drug charge upon his return to the United States. He claims the case was a frameup. In prison he met the millionaire Bigelow, serving time for income tax evasion, and upon his release obtained a job with the company.

DIES AT HOME

Mrs. Richard Jones Was Native of City; Rites Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Helen Cairns Jones, 35, wife of Richard Jones and a native of Mansfield, died unexpectedly early today at their apartment, 185 Helen avenue.

Born May 29, 1903 in Mansfield, Mrs. Jones was the daughter of the late J. M. and Margaret Brooks Cairns. She attended public schools here and was graduated from Mansfield high school. For a number of years she was employed at the Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company. She was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Surviving besides her husband is a brother Gordon Cairns of Napa, Cal. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at the Finckel funeral home with Dr. Herbert S. Gurnes, pastor of St. Luke's church officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

HITLER SPEECH PRAISES HERO OF FATHERLAND

Bismarck, 'Iron Chancellor,' Credited With Rebirth of Reich's Power at Sea.

(By United Press)

HAMBURG — Germany announced to the world today its bid for "Blue Water" naval power as its first 35,000-ton battleship of the post-war period, named Bismarck for the man who built modern Germany, slid down the ways into the Elbe.

Adolf Hitler named the ship in a brief speech in which he paid tribute to the iron chancellor, his predecessor "strong man" of last century. But for once Hitler was overshadowed by the importance of an event which spoke for itself.

War Background.

The Elbe leads out to the North Sea, the naval battleground of the World war, and with the Bismarck, first of a series of great first line battleships, Nazi Germany was preparing to take the open sea as did the fleet of the old empire which its crew sank in Scapa Flow as it surrendered to the British after the World war.

Hitler called Bismarck the man who was the forerunner of German rebirth, and appealed to the cheering, eager thousands who heard him to keep the name of Bismarck in their hearts.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, official newspaper organ of the Nazi party, said editorially:

"The new battleship, the most powerful technical wonder work of the world, will be a sign to the world that Germany intends to defend its coasts and maintain the Reich's naval reputation on all the seas. The rebirth of a young navy finds in this battleship its crowning glory. With the 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, this great new battleship gives Germany a place in the ranks of the great sea powers."

FAIR ENOUGH!

Public to Benefit From Running Debate Between Harold Ickes and Press

—By WESTBROOK FEGLER

NEW YORK—This running debate with Harold Ickes on the freedom of the press is going to be good for the American press and for the country as well. It will emphasize the faults of the press and the tricks and insincerities of statesmen and politicians, too.

The people, being apprised of wrongs on both sides, through these mutual recriminations, will bear down with the pressure of their will and compel more tidy behavior all around.

The criticism of the press should come from the press itself, but, although we are nicer now than ever before and the best press in the world, if that means anything, self-criticism, except in meditation, never is completely frank. You try hitting yourself on the chin with all your might and you will find that at the instant of the impact, as they say in golf, you will pull the punch.

Hitting someone else is another matter and the press can rip and tear with complete abandon and, also, with complete honesty, in attacking evils outside itself.

I doubt that the house dick of the New Deal, in his private thoughts, approves himself as heartily as he does in public. If he does, he is an ego-maniac. Harold can't see it that way, but he is in the same position as the press. It just isn't possible for him to belt the New Deal for its faults, or himself for his, as hard as he belts the press, even though they be apparent to him in his private reflections.

Moreover, in criticizing the press, he resorts to the same practices that he condemns in the press. For example, he has pleaded guilty to two "overstatements" in his debate with Frank Gannett, but did not bear down on the fact that he, like the press, has a duty to check his information, particularly when it is delivered in malice, as these two "overstatements" were.

And, although he accuses the press of undue zest in refuting his "overstatements," his position as a party to the row disqualifies him.

Can you picture what Mr. Roosevelt would do with the right to "vet" any extraneous provision that is not germane" in his own opinion, "to a bill" after it has left congress?

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Deep in the heart of the jungle over the studio ice rink the junior Tarzan and his screen mamma walked hand in hand down a carefully impromptu forest path to be surprised by a gang of stalwart blacks in the service of white explorers Henry Wilcoxon and Frieda Inescort.

And on the sidelines, his foot resting on a cage wherein reposed a sloth sleeping upside down, stood the junior Tarzan's papa—Reginald Sheffield.

"I shouldn't say it, being his father, but Johnny's a mighty fine little boy," said David Rogers, who has been in plenty of pictures, but not in "Tarzan in Exile."

When I met Johnny I had to agree. He is a nice, tough little hombre, having a picnic swinging in prop trees in a lion-cloth and body make-up. It's in character that he shouldn't brush his hair much, which from Johnny's point of view is all to the good.

Johnny was an incubator baby, but at seven years of age he's brawnier than most. He came into his big role via one of those nationwide talent hunts which, true to form, ended where it began—in Hollywood. Or at least with a Hollywood personality "discovered" in New York. Johnny was one of the kids who, terminated with Peter Holden in "On Borrowed Time" and that was when Daddy Reginald read in the papers about Tarzan's need for an athletic offspring.

Sheffield took steps, via his agent, and it was in the bag. The Sheffield backyard in Hollywood is complete with all varieties of trapezes, ladders, and swinging equipment to appease what their father calls the "monkey blood" in all three of his youngsters. Johnny was good enough at swimming, too, and was immediately approved by Tarzan Weissmuller.

The senior Sheffield is English but Johnny, his brother, sister and mother are American. Sheffield himself has been in this country since childhood, coming over after playing the boy "David Copperfield" in England. He came to Hollywood in 1930 to play the romantic lead in George Arliss' "Old English," which shows how time marches if you didn't know. The erstwhile romantic lead is mostly and contentedly bald, plays characters like that of Kipling in "Gunga Din," wears a toupee when necessary, and beams at the flourishing career of son Johnny.

Tarzan Junior's screen mamma is Maureen O'Sullivan, whose

Maureen, looking radiant and lovely, is happy in the Tarzan times regardless of what you may have heard.

"I like them," she said, "and I don't know of a better way to be seen by millions of fans. I did object to spending so much time on them to the exclusion of other types of roles. But I certainly don't want to be 'killed off' in this one. I've got to be shot—but I don't want to die."

"And this time I know there can't be any production delays, because—" she twinkled—"I've got them there."

Which she has, for a fact. Mr. and Mrs. John Farrow are happily anticipating their first child.

County Agent George B. Gumbard, who arranged the sessions, said the meetings will be open to all farmers interested in raising horses.

ONE of the most complete volumes pertaining to sports ever published is "The Encyclopedia of Sports," authored by Frank G. Memke, one of the topnotch authorities in the sports business.

It is not a figure-filled record book. The stress is on histories of the various sports, and what a reader is unable to find in the Memke book is probably not worth knowing.

Paging through the handy 319-page volume in a hit-skip fashion, it was interesting to learn that more money is spent each year for fishing than any other sport.

That archery is the most astonishing sport in the world because of its chiefy by the fashionable set of this era, was the method man employed to kill more humans than have been slain by all the shot and shell ever exploded.

That ancient chronicles reveal that the first bowling was done in the cloisters of cathedrals.

That pugilism is derived from the Latin "pugil," being the description of "one who fights with his fists."

That the racing greyhound has no acute sense of smell, as have other dogs. This is offset by uncanny hearing, remarkable eyesight and the speed that makes him the fastest dog that lives.

That English workmen of the middle 11th century originated the football idea by the rather ghastly process of kicking around the skull of one of the Danes who had been part of the army from Denmark which conquered England in about 1017 A. D.

That golf is believed to have originated as a definite game along in the 14th or 15th centuries. Successive kings of Scotland tried to abolish the sport, but it was played furtively and kept alive.

Yunker, Westie Teams Triumph

Sports Drub Hi-Speeds, 55 to 24; Electrics Outpoint Elks, 36 to 26, in City League Games.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THEIR title ambitious dealt a stunning blow in the opening games of final round of play in the City Class A basketball league, Earl Herrick's Hi-Speed and the Elks Lodge quintets today were resting in the cellar in the circuit standings.

The clubs attempted to add strength in order to figure in the title chase, but the efforts were to no avail, for both teams went down in defeat last night in the league's "Battle of the Elks." The Hi-Speed, who had hoped "Beanie" Barr would join their ranks last night, played without him and suffered a 55 to 24 drubbing at the hands of the defending champion Yunker Sports.

While the Elks, with two new members in the lineup, bowed to the Westinghouse Electrics, 36 to 26, in the final contest before one of the smallest gatherings of the season.

Set Season Record.

Manager Jimmy Breres' high-scoring outfit put on scoring exhibitions in the second and final frames to dust off the Hi-Speeds. Herrick's team went into the second frame holding a 9 to 6 lead.

But the Sports began connecting from all points to pile up an overwhelming lead, and register a new season team scoring record.

Herrick, who had signed up Berens recently, even used George Nana, who has been ill in an effort to halt the winners. The Hi-Speeds made a fight of it in the opening stanza, but their passing, shooting and defensive play fell to pieces before the Sports' backboard bombardment.

With Al Sticker, John Reese and LaVerne Gray leading the way, the Yunker machine went wild in the second to jump into a 27 to 12 lead at halftime.

The Hi-Speeds rallied to battle the winners of even terms in the third, but the Sports raced into the final chapter holding a 33 to 18 advantage.

Sticker was high-point man with 17 points, while Reese and Gray followed with 15 and 14, respectively. Clarence Herrick topped the losers with eight points.

Elks had Gervis Brady, erstwhile Mt. Union star, and John McLean of Ohio university, in the lineup, but couldn't match the fast-breaking attack of George Percy's Electrics.

The Westies, who collected nine points in each frame, spurred in the closing minutes of the initial quarter to take a 9 to 6 lead.

The winners, after holding the lead for two periods, suddenly saw their advantage wiped out midway in the third, but a sudden spurt enabled them to regain the lead before the clubs went into the final chapter. And then the winners collected their nine points while holding the Elks to a free throw to take the decision.

The Electrics led, 18 to 14, at the intermission and 27 to 25, at the end of the third.

Tom Boosts Total.

Tom Farrell, present individual scoring leader of the league, rattled the backboards for 13 markers to boost his total to 70 points, an 11-point lead over Bob Shaden, his nearest rival for the crown.

Fritz Vogle and Howard Poole led the Westies with eight points apiece.

Bob Feller Has Good Advice for Tiger Rookie

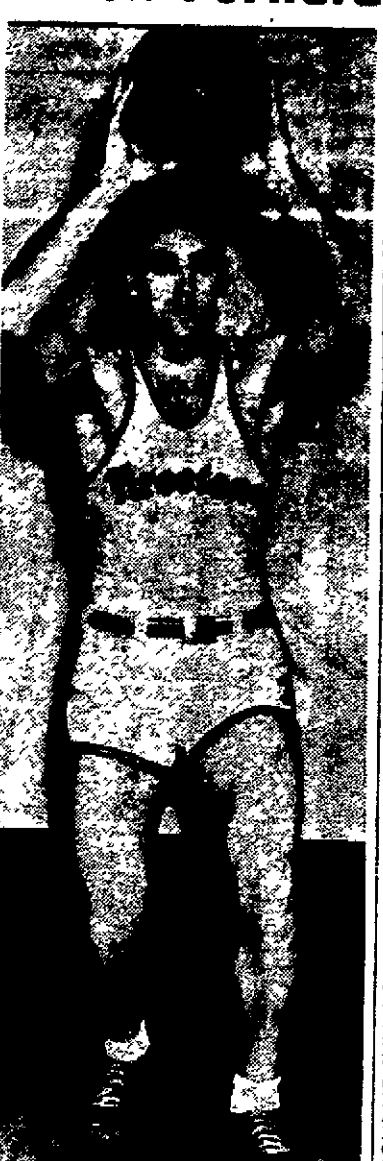

By GAYLE TALBOT

DELAY BEACH, Fla.—(P)—Bob Feller stretched himself luxuriously in the hot sunshine and said he thought maybe he ought not to try to give any advice to Fred Hutchinson, the kid pitching sensation from Seattle, who is coming up to the Detroit Tigers this season under the handicap of a whopping price tag.

I had suggested to Bob, who is spending the winter here with his parents and some members of the Cleveland club, that his and Hutchinson's cases were similar.

Bob also having jumped feet-first into the big time as a juvenile wonder.

Professional basketball makes a triumphant return to Cleveland Friday night, when the Cleveland White Horses and the Akron Firestones collide in a National Basketball League game at the Arena, topping a three game cage program.

The White Horses, formerly the Warren (Pa.) Penns, have been taken over by the Arena interests and will play under the Cleveland banner for the balance of the season.

Showing the way for the invaders are a pair of Notre Dame alums of last year, Forward Johnny Moir, currently leading the National League individual scoring, and Center Paul Nowak.

Four-Way Tie Possible In Church League

The six-way tie for second place in the Class A Church league may blossom into a four-way deadlock for the lead. Wednesday's league games at the Y. M. C. A. present such a possibility.

If the first place Temple Emanuel cagers should unexpectedly lose to the cellar Episcopalists, the three teams which will be the other league leaders.

men triumph, the three winners in the other tilts can only retain a share of second place.

The Class B Church league will open the second round of play tonight at the Y. The games: Park Avenue Baptist vs. First Christian, 6:45; Central M. E. vs. First Presbyterian, 7:45; Mayflower vs. South Main, 8:45; First M. E. vs. First Lutheran, 9:45.

SONNY MEDER, HILBORN TIED FOR AVERAGE LEAD

Art Hilborn and Sonny Meder were tied for first place in the averages at the conclusion of the second round of bowling (Feb. 11) in the Club league, Secretary Harold C. Miller announced today.

They sported even 200 averages. Other average leaders: Brig Young, 197; Henry Michaels, 194; Dube Weber, 192; Clyde Ritter, 191; Bill Donnellan, 190.

Five Teams Share Second Place In Tight Club League Battle

Harter Rolls 695 Total In Gallon Elks Circuit; Barbers Tie Gimbel Club for C Lead.

FIVE TEAMS trail the pace-setting Schoolmasters in a second-place tie in the Club Handicap league today.

Included among the quintet of teams sharing the deadlock is the Liederkranz club, which annexed scoring honors at the Meder alleys last night with a 2965 total.

Clyde Ritter, who opened with a 253, and Henry Michaels shot respective totals of 624 and 618 as they led the Liederkranz club to scores of 975, 972 and 1018 and three wins over Baku Grotto.

Another team in the tie is the Page Dairys, who last night annexed a drive to second place from the basement by taking a pair of tilts from the Commercial Managers. The Dairys, who have won 20 out of their last 24 games, were led by Sonny Meder's 616.

Other teams figuring in the deadlock are the American Legion, Mansfield Athletic and Tracy & Avery clubs. The Athletic club lost two games to the Optimists and Tracy & Avery added three at the expense of the Legionnaires.

The Schoolmasters retained their six-game advantage by winning two games from the Kiwanians. The J. A. C. took three games from the Mansfield Savings Bank in the other match.

BILLS FLOOD LEGISLATURE

created to hear appeals from the commissioner's decisions.

The liquor director's authority would be enlarged under the bill affecting that department while the liquor board's membership would be reduced from four to three and its duties confined chiefly to hearing appeals from the director's decisions to permit applications.

Appointment of the conservation commissioner by a newly-created conservation commission, replacing the present council, and giving him indefinite tenure was the principal objective of that revamping bill.

A companion measure would establish a bureau of standards and provide a uniform system of purchases by the state and local subdivisions.

Rep. Benjamin F. Reading (R-Lucas) introduced the rural "bone-dry" measure, regarded as the most restrictive liquor bill offered since repeal of prohibition.

It would prohibit sale of either beer (32) or intoxicants within one block of a school or church, forbid employment of women in places where liquor is sold, provide local option election in municipalities on sale of beer in addition to liquor options, prohibit sale of liquor at gasoline filling stations and forbid sale of beer to persons under 21 years.

Authoritative sources reported that dry forces planned originally to provide for county-wide local option elections but deferred this proposal. The present law restricts such elections to townships and city wards or precincts.

The highly-controversial parochial school issue apparently was scheduled for another hearing through introduction of bills which would give such schools equal benefits with public schools under the foundation program.

The "sick commissioner" law, enacted two years ago to enable Democrats to retain control over patronage by changing provisions for filling vacancies in county commissionships, was slated for repeal.

CLINIC STARTS

Kitchen Experts Open 2-Day Session in Mansfield.

The fifth annual kitchen clinic to be held at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company in Mansfield, opened today for a two-day session.

Twenty-one home planning experts, including directors, magazine writers and merchandising men, met at the Mansfield-Leland dining room this morning for an opening breakfast and the clinic was opened at 10 a. m. by F. B. Williams, Jr., vice president of the company.

Among the subjects discussed today was whether there is a tendency to over-streamline the modern kitchen to the disadvantage of functional design. Wall cabinets and auxiliary storage space were also discussed, while the subjects of farm kitchens, apartment house kitchens and kitchen lighting were scheduled for the afternoon.

I. W. Clark, manager of the Westinghouse home planning department, is in charge of the sessions, assisted by various department heads of the plant.

Luncheon was served in the Westinghouse cafeteria this noon and a dinner-dance will be given for the guests tonight at the Leland ballroom.

SUIT DROPPED

$10,000 Damage Action Settled Out of Court, Case Dismissed.

A $10,000 damage suit involving an automobile accident on Lexington avenue last April had been dismissed today in common pleas court after the case was settled out of court.

The action was brought against Robert Schumacher, Mansfield, by Robert E. Hecklin, of Cincinnati, who suffered injuries when his car overturned near Mansfield April 1, 1938. Amount of the settlement was not revealed.

READY TO START ROAD PROGRAM

Engineers, Commissioners to Go Over Requests of County Townships.

With reports in from all of the county's 18 townships, county commissioners and Engineer Howard C. Sward were ready today to begin work on the 1939 road program.

A series of conferences with township trustees was completed yesterday when officials from six of the townships in the northern half of the county submitted their requests to county officials.

Only two of the six township groups had specific plans for the year. Franklin township trustees asking for aid in grading one and a half miles of the Celsenger road and the Butler trustees requesting continuance of a WPA project on the Mansfield-Adario and Nelson roads.

The WPA project was started last year under the county's $1,000,000 program but was suspended because of cold weather.

Trustees from Cass, Plymouth, Bloominggrove and Weller townships said they planned only maintenance work during the year.

The county had promised help up to $2,000 per township in repairing and maintaining the rural roads.

RULES OUT TAX SUIT PETITIONS

Court Action Virtually Kills Cases Against Owners and Executors of 4 Estates.

In the suits. The original cases have never been heard in court.

Involved in the action, which contended that incomplete personal tax returns were filed during the period from 1926 to 1930, were the properties of J. A. Rigby and Harry S. Black and the estates of the late Frank B. Black and Burton K. Preston.

Hallabrin, plaintiff in the cases which were filed last May, contended that a state law which later was ruled unconstitutional, exempted certain property owners from payment of personal tax on the full valuation during the four-year period.

The amended petitions were filed after Judge C. H. Huston denied the plaintiffs' attorneys access to county tax books which would show the actual amount of personal tax paid.

By including the county officials and state tax commission in the actions, the plaintiff sought to require them to open the tax records for examination.

The defendants were represented by Attys. Weldon and Huston and R. E. Hutchison.

WEST OUT FOR U. S. COURT POST

Resignation of Brandeis Sets Off Drive by Senators for Western Appointees.

Majority of the court held unconstitutional.

Mr. Roosevelt now is embroiled in a half dozen senate controversies over appointments to federal posts, and his designation of Brandeis' successor may show whether he intends to listen to senatorial recommendations. The appointment will be the president's fourth to the court.

Western senators are certain to look askance at an appointee who does not come from their region, and were quick to suggest candidates.

Senators Adams and Johnson, Colorado Democrats, declared their support of Federal Judge Sam Bratton (D-Tex.) said he would recommend Federal Circuit Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr. of Texas, but added that Bratton "would be fine."

Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) advocated appointment of Dean Wiley Rutledge of the University of Iowa law school, who was reported to have been under consideration when Felix Frankfurter recently was selected to succeed the late Justice Cardozo.

Another name prominently mentioned was that of Justice Harold Stephens of the District of Columbia court of appeals. Stephens is a resident of Utah.

Administration senators said the president has been swayed in considering the last appointment by arguments for sections representation but had decided to appoint Frankfurter, a Harvard law professor, on the advice of Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.)

House Debates Roosevelt Plan for 5,500 New Planes

O.K. BY LOWER CHAMBER SEEN FOR ARMS BILL

Passage Tomorrow Predicted by Leaders; Fight Ahead in Senate Debate.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—The house began general debate today on a bill authorizing part of President Roosevelt's proposed emergency national defense program, including an increase in the fighting strength of the air force to 5,500 planes.

House leaders expected to pass the measure, authorizing total expenditures of approximately $376,000,000, by tomorrow night. Debate will be limited to six hours.

The bill was expected to meet little opposition in the house, although Republicans were prepared to offer an amendment to spread the increase in army air power over a several years' period. As reported out by the military affairs committee, it provides for immediate increase of army aircraft from 2,320 to 5,500 planes.

Opposition Due.
Once through the house, the measure was expected to encounter more opposition in the senate, where national defense and foreign policy have become controversial subjects.

In addition to the plane increase, the bill would authorize:

Increase of the standing army forces from 165,000 to approximately 205,000, of which some 23,000 would be in the air corps.

An appropriation of $23,750,000 for Panama Canal defenses, including barracks and anti-aircraft equipment. The canal garrison would be increased by approximately 6,000 men.

An appropriation of $32,500,000 for placing of "educational orders" with industry for explosives, fuses, dies and tools.

A program for training pilots in accredited colleges and universities, with loaned army equipment, and under supervision of army officers, at an estimated cost of $10,000,000 per year.

Extension for a 10-year period of air corps reserve officers' tours of active duty from five to seven years.

The house military affairs committee declined to give the war department a requested relaxation of the legal requirement that planes be bought on lowest bids. The department suggested "negotiated" purchases, saying it could hold down the prices to a reasonable and fair figure.

Women Will Hear Health and Charm Secrets at School

Secrets of radiant health, personal charm and perennial youthfulness will be given to Mansfield women in an unusual "charm school" which The News-Journal will sponsor at Senior high school auditorium next week.

Dr. Alexander Davis, nationally known lecturer on health and beauty—two requisites for charm—will be brought to Mansfield for three afternoon sessions, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, from 2 to 4.

Dr. Davis is an exponent of the theory that there can be no beauty where there isn't radiant health, and that any woman who has these two fundamentals can acquire charm. He believes, too, that every detail of a woman's physical condition affects her looks and disposition—such as feet that hurt, round shoulders, poor posture, headaches, and other weaknesses, all of which may be corrected.

"Both beauty and charm are dependent upon health permitting the fullest expression of personality," he explains, "and health is dependent upon such things as posture, glands, over weight, under weight—all of which may very possibly be corrected by following a few simple rules."

Dr. Davis will speak on different subjects each day, and after the lectures women may ask any questions they desire.

The lectures are open to the general public except Tuesday, which is for women only, and are free.

FACES COURT

Youth Returned from California Up for Hearing Today.

Thomas Schwartz, 23, of Shelby, returned to Richland county Saturday from Los Angeles, Cal., was to come before Judge C. H. Huston this afternoon on a charge of violating his probation.

Schwartz, placed on probation for five years after he admitted breaking into a Shelby filling station in 1935, violated the parole by abandoning his three small children recently to go to the west coast, county authorities said.

CONTAGION UP

Rehder Reports 100 Per Cent Increase in January.

Communicable diseases in Mansfield during January showed an increase of 100 per cent over December. Dr. Roy C. Rehder, county health commissioner, told the Mansfield board of health last night.

Dr. Rehder reported that 226 cases of contagious diseases were recorded in the city last month as compared with 109 in December.

The largest increase was shown in chickenpox with 149 cases reported to the health department. This was an increase of 105 cases over the December total.

Increases also were shown in all other diseases except mumps, which dropped from 32 cases in December to 28 during the past month.

Births and deaths both decreased during the month. There were 32 deaths reported, a decrease of 11 from the previous month. During January 67 births were recorded, two less than in December.

SCHOOL OFFICER TALKS TO P. T. A.

Eisaman Tells Prospect Group of Work of Rounding Up Truants.

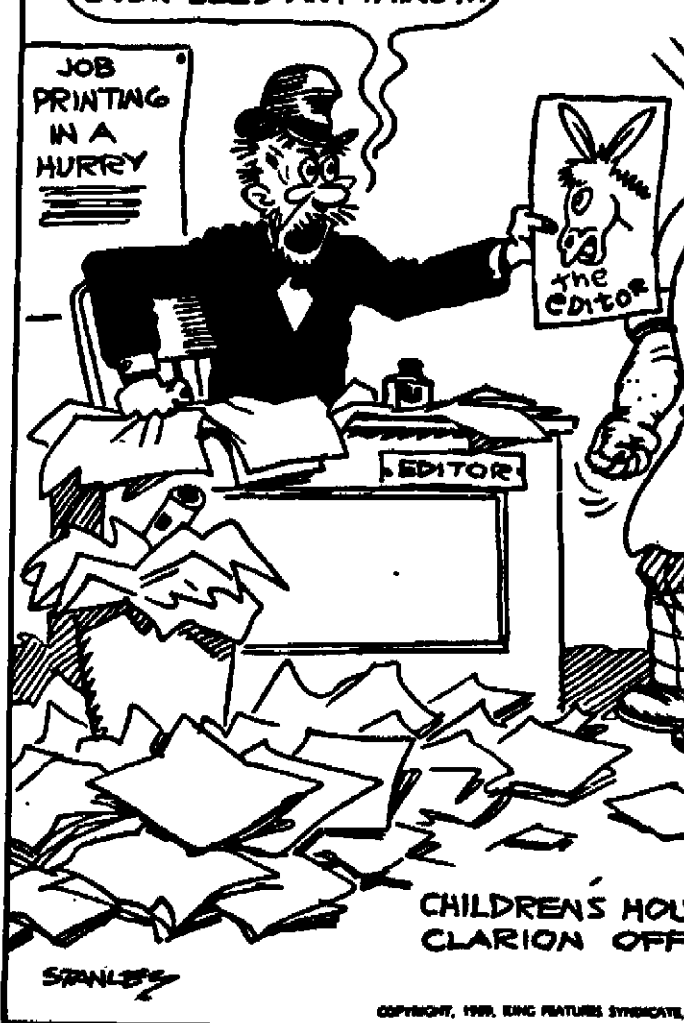

John Eisaman, attendance officer of the public schools, told members of the Prospect Parent-Teacher association of his work of rounding up truants and other children who miss school, at a meeting last night.

The program also included several vocal selections by Robert Early, senior high school student, accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Ireland.

The association voted to contribute money for religious education work in the schools and to buy equipment for the vocational classes at Bushnell school. George Taylor, principal, was named a delegate to the Northcentral District conference at Ashland, Feb. 23.

TEMPLAR BALL

Commandery Dance to Honor Commander Kyle.

Mansfield Commandery No. 21, Knights Templar, will hold its annual Templar ball at 8 p. m. Thursday at the Masonic temple, commandery officials announced today.

The event will honor of George C. Kyle, eminent commander, and is open to members, their wives and friends. Knights will attend in full uniform, without the sword.

A program of entertainment will be presented from 8:15 to 9 p. m., and will include the Westinghouse Glee club minstrels. Dancing will be from 9 p. m. to midnight, preceded by a grand march headed by Commander Kyle. Music will be furnished by Nels Blocker and his orchestra.

Arrangements are in charge of a committee made up of E. L. Becker, chairman; Henry Senert, Harry Henness, Walter Burrier, A. F. Porter, O. E. Hart, O. F. Garver, D. Y. Hudson and John VanCura.

City Seeking To Sway Woman Bent On Suicide Death

TOLEDO—(AP)—Somewhere in Toledo today a 70-year-old woman ponders the question whether life is worth living.

Scores have pleaded with her in letters to newspapers not to end her life—as she has indicated she would do before the day ends.

Many jobs have been offered her—one of the reasons she indicated she wished to end her life was she is without money.

Her name is unknown to the public.

Last Wednesday she visited a Toledo funeral director to learn whether a funeral contract she made for herself in 1934 would be honored in her present penniless state.

Suddenly she cried: "I am going to complete this. I am going to finish this thing." And she outlined her funeral plans—no religious service, no flowers, no prayer, no visitors, cremation, and scattering of her ashes—"anywhere."

The funeral director persuaded her to wait a week—ending today—before carrying out her decision. A newspaper published the details. Offers of jobs have poured in—but the woman fears they are offered in charity—and she does not want charity.

DE-INKED' WASTE PAPER HOLDS UP UNDER TEST FOR NEWSPRINT

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH—Newsprint created from "de-inked" waste paper has passed its most severe test and the inventor predicted today the process he believes may revolutionize the industry, would be producing the paper commercially in a matter of months.

Newsprint is the paper on which your daily newspaper is printed and it now comes largely from Canadian wood pulp.

Last night the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette tested the new paper. Dr. W. F. Hochstetter, Pittsburgh inventor, smiled as he watched the high-speed presses run off 8,000 copies, each containing four pages made from his processed newsprint.

Even skeptical pressmen praised the new paper's resistance as it rolled through the presses at the rate of 40,000 an hour. Editors thought the pages printed on the waste paper newsprint seemed easier to read because, they said, the paper was whiter.

Dr. Hochstetter, who claims his process will reduce the price of newsprint from the present scale of $50 to $55 a ton for wood pulp to $30 to $35, said it would be "several months, at least" before commercial production could be started.

His newsprint was made from old magazines, newspapers, poster sheets, even carbon paper. It made a dirty pulp, but came out white under the inventor's secret chemical treatment.

Dr. Hochstetter also is working on a process to create newsprint from straw and other farm products.

JAPAN IGNORES PROTESTS, PUTS PLANES ON ISLE

U. S. Destroyer Arrives in Move to Protect Americans If Menaced by Nippon.

(By Associated Press)

HONG KONG—Japanese naval and aviation units landed at dawn today at Yulinkan, at the southernmost tip of Hainan, the Chinese island near British and French empire lifelines, whose preliminary occupation Friday brought French and British diplomatic inquiries about Japanese intentions.

(The United States destroyer John D. Edwards, with Capt. John T. G. Stapler, commander of the United States navy's South China patrol, arrived from Hong Kong today at Hoihow, North Hainan port, to investigate and, if necessary, to protect American lives and interests on Hainan.)

The landing placed the Japanese navy in a potential base 750 miles due east of Luzon, the principal island of the Philippines.

Resistance Crumbles.
An official statement said that by noon Japanese landing forces had penetrated 15 miles inland with a rapidity that indicated an apparent lack of Chinese resistance to the invaders' occupation of the Sama Bay area—generally considered among the Far East's potentially best although currently undeveloped deep water harbors.

The combined military and naval action resulting in the occupation Friday of the North Hainan ports gave the Japanese command of the southern approaches to the Chinese mainland, only 15 miles from the North Hainan coast.

(Hainan is about 200 miles from the Indo-China coast and 300 miles from Hongkong, a British crown colony. In Tokyo foreign Minister Hachiro Arita assured the British and French ambassadors that the occupation of Hainan would not exceed military necessity, and was done only to curb Chinese shipping.)

Neutral observers here professed to see little connection between the south Hainan landing and the campaign against China because the landing point is more than 200 sea miles from China proper.

Cause of School Failures Laid to Child's Attitude

A child's attitude toward his school work is just as important if not more important, than the subject matter for study, Dr. C. L. Anspach, president of Ashland college, told members of the Country Day school Parent-Teacher association last night.

Dr. Anspach said that a recent survey among Chicago public school students showed that 80 per cent of the failures were due, not to the choice of subject matter, but to the students' attitude toward their work.

He stressed the fact that school work is only one phase of a child's education; that he learns from all other sources, including every agency in his community, and said that one of the primary needs today was to break down the parents' ideas that a child's education is confined to schooling.

After the lecture, a social committee made up of Mrs. N. O. Warner, Mrs. C. J. Burger and Mrs. M. D. Harnly, served refreshments. The speaker and date of the next meeting will be announced later. John W. Graham, president, said.

SEE MOVIES OF STORM'S WRATH

Gyro Members To Be Shown Film of New England Hurricane.

Sound motion pictures depicting the damage caused by the recent hurricane in the New England states will be shown members of the Gyro club at their bi-weekly meeting Wednesday evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Arrangements for showing the pictures were made through the Mansfield Telephone company, and Earl B. Rawson, club secretary and program chairman. Pictures will be shown by Harry DeLaney, projectionist, and a member of the club.

The film, augmented by a transcription of comments by Edwin C. Hill, famous commentator, gives a first-hand impression of the tremendous damage resulting from heavy winds and turbulent floods which swept into the New England area, and the rehabilitation work done by the Bell Telephone system, which made the picture.

TALKS TO CLUB ON BOY SCOUTS

Gallon Pastor Addresses Rotary Club Luncheon Meeting.

Value of Boy Scouting to its participants and to the communities in which it is carried on was the theme of an address given at Tuesday's Rotary club meeting by Rev. Philip Auer, pastor of Peace Lutheran church, Gallon.

Rev. Auer used apt illustrations in touching on various character-building phases of scout law and impressed the need for adult cooperation in furthering the work of scouting, and in providing examples of conduct that can be safely followed by young people.

Floyd Dent, Boy Scout executive, was chairman of the meeting and gave a brief resume of scout activities in this area. Several officials of Johnny Appleseed council and pioneers in the Boy Scout movement in Mansfield were guests.

PLANS RACING

Syndicate Seeks Fairground for Short Ship Meeting.

Rental of the Richland county fairground for the return of short ship circuit races to Mansfield will be considered at a meeting of the fair board Saturday evening at the Southern hotel, R. D. Hale, secretary of the fair board, said today.

Hale said that a proposition for the leasing of the city's only racing site was given to the fair board last night at a meeting with representatives of a syndicate interested in promoting the races in the city. The Mansfield racing meeting is tentatively set for the week of June 4.

Among those who attended the meeting last night were Joseph M. McGraw, of Washington, Pa., president judge of the circuit; L. G. Duffey of Cleveland, representative of the Harness Horse magazine; Roy Dickson, E. S. Nail and H. G. Peck, Mansfield, horse owners; Harry Short, C. H. Bowen and Wayne Smart of Columbus; A. T. Morrison of Sandusky, Robert Plaxico of Canton and A. T. Lockwood of Midland, Pa.

Mansfield, the first Ohio city to stage night races, withdrew from the circuit several years ago.

FUNERAL SET

GALLON—Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 9 a. m. at the Lady of Good Counsel church in Cleveland for E. P. Bernard, 75, father of Frank E. Bernard of Gallon. The body is at the Ross funeral home in Cleveland. Mr. Bernard died early Monday morning at the home of his son, Albert Bernard, of Valley City, Ohio. He had been bedfast for two weeks.

About five years ago he made his home here with his son, Frank, and at that time made many friends here.

Besides his son here, he is survived by his widow, and sons, Walter of Parma; Wallace of Cleveland; George of Medina; Carl of Ashtabula; Albert of Valley City.

PLUMBING CODE REVISIONS COME UP NEXT MONTH

Health Board Drafts Changes; One Calls for Plumbing Board of Examiners.

The Mansfield board of health will hold a first reading on the revised city plumbing code at its March meeting. It was indicated today after the board spent two hours last night drafting the proposed changes with William C. Groeniger, consulting sanitary engineer.

The revised legislation is to be prepared by City Solicitor Marion D. Ward for presentation at the next meeting, March 13.

Major changes drafted into the two-year-old ordinance call for the establishment of a plumbing board of examiners and the extension of the authority of the city plumbing inspector.

Amendments provide for the establishment of a three-man examining board to be named by the board of health and including one journeyman and one master plumber and the health commissioner. The plumbing inspector by virtue of his position would become ex-officio secretary.

Examining board members must have had 10 years' experience as plumbers. The non-salaried positions are to be for terms of two years.

The board will rule on the competency of persons engaged in the plumbing business in Mansfield and will recommend or reject the applicant to the board of health which issues the licenses.

Provisions in the code permit the examining board to set up the time for examinations which will entail a uniform $3 examining fee.

Licenses will require renewal annually on or before Dec. 31, with a penalty of $25 for failure to make application. The regular renewal fee will be $25.

The other amendment extends the authority of the plumbing inspector to allow for the inspection of the drainage system to the point where it taps into the city system.

Other changes include the licensing of sewer tappers, or persons who make the installations of sewers from the buildings to the city system, and sets up the qualifications and duties of the plumbing inspector.

28 SENIOR HIGH GIRLS CHOSEN ON DRUM CORPS

New Unit of 20 Drum Majors to Appear With Group Next Fall.

Twenty-eight Senior high school girls today were named as members of the school's girls' drum corps by J. Merton Holcombe, band director in the public schools.

Officers of the organization for the new semester also were elected. Those named to the corps will comprise the group that will appear at football games next fall and at spring and summer activities.

The officers are Jane Meyers, president; Jan Stough, vice president; and Marjorie Mitchell, manager. Members in addition to the officers are Dorothy Swendell, Dorothy Blackstone, Betty Walters, Lucille Prosser, Mary Periman, Juanita Oswalt, Mary Longsdorf, Peggy Long, Marjorie Malbaugh, Esther Booksbaum, Evangeline Hammond, Helen Underwood, Ruth Tischinger, Geraldine Roads, Mildred Durbin, Marguerite Bader, Jane McClure, Marianne Edmonstone, Lucille Fetter, Delores McNutt, Jane Buell, Mary Stevens, Kate Owens, Ruth Simmons and Dawn Holt.

New Unit Formed.
A new unit will make its appearance with the Senior high school band and the drum and bugle corps next fall. It will be a group of 20 drum majors. Fifteen students have already been named to the unit.

They are Gretchen Lane, Laura Jean Lotz, Martha Metcalf, Maxine Pearson, Norma Jane Miller, Evelyn Yoder, Carolyn Robinette, Ervoldine Black, John Thern, Robert Beams, George Odell, Jack White, Dan Glick, Betty Walters and Lillian Art.

From this group will be selected the drum majors for the three musical units, Director Holcombe said. They will all work as one unit for special maneuvers. Three new members added to the girls' bugle corps are Helen Mosser, Martha Butts and Dorothy Gump. Plans are now under way for the annual spring festival by the band group. Taking part will be the 72-piece Senior high school band, the girls' drum and bugle corps, and a Junior high school band of 75 pieces made up of members from Hedges and John Simpson Junior high schools. Included in the Junior high group will be a brass quartet from Hedges school. It is made up of Glenn Schaaf and James Smith, trumpets; Samuel Brown, baritone; and Robert Bechtel, bass.

A benefit variety show will be presented by the 11-A class of Senior high school March 10 at the Ohio theater, Steve Karnavas, class president, announced today. The program will include a "Musical College," patterned after the one presented each Wednesday over the NBC network, in which six people will be called from the audience to answer questions on music. The questions will be prepared by the class.

Several acts will be presented by members of the class, and music will be furnished by an orchestra made up of members of the class. One performance of the show will be given in the evening. Tickets will be sold by members of the class and a percentage from the tickets sold will go to the class treasury.

The first picture show of the new semester will be held tomorrow in the high school auditorium. It will take the place of the weekly assembly program and will feature the picture "Captains Courageous" with Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew.

CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

TRUST YOUR PHYSICIAN
John D. Davis, Druggist
Every conscientious doctor prefers to aid you in preventing serious illness rather than treat you after a period. His years of training, plus a natural aptitude, make him the greatest of humanitarians. His desire to aid you—not just because you are unequipped to aid yourself—is the basis of an innate consideration for the well-being of others.
His first thought is of keeping you well, and this he can do if you will only seek his counsel at regular intervals, then follow implicitly his advice. If you do not do so you are disregarding the first and greatest law of nature, self-preservation.
Self-medication for self-preservation is a dangerous and seldom successful method of dealing with an unknown cause. Only a qualified doctor can determine the cause of illness. Let him prescribe what treatment is necessary.
You will also find that it is wise to carefully choose the pharmacist and the well equipped drug store when having prescriptions filled.

AID FOR LONELY
Solves Personal Problem By Solving Other People's Problems.
NEW YORK—(U.S.)—Joseph Clawson, 24, had a fairly flourishing business here after hitting on a plan to solve his personal employment problem by solving other people's social problems.

NEVER FELT BETTER IN MY LIFE SAYS LADY
Unstrung, Shaky From Constipation, Tries World's Tonic, Gets Quick Relief
Gives Grateful Praise To Famous World's Tonic.

Of all the pleasant sensations in life, relief from pain is probably the most welcome. It's difficult and sometimes impossible to do even the smallest of our daily tasks when pains are throbbing and pounding away at us. A chief aim of World's Tonic is to relieve the pain brought on by occasional constipation and the best way to realize how many ills can be caused by this is to get relief. You might even wonder how you managed to get around at all when you see your condition before, with the way you feel afterwards.

Mrs. Pearl Hahn of 525 Talbert St., Akron, Ohio, tells: "I'm so grateful for the benefits I received from World's Tonic and I never felt better in my life. I've been so unstrung and shaky all over that I could hardly do my housework and sewing was almost out of the question. I felt gloomy and sad and wanted to be by myself all the time. Nights were restless and the little sleep I got left me all worn out to start the days which seemed to drag by slowly as if they would never end. No matter what I ate I'd have trouble and the foods I used to like had no temptation for me any more. Gas and acid were always with me and constipation never let up for a day. I was so forgetful about where I laid things down that I started worrying about holding on to my mind."

"World's Tonic gave me relief at once from the irritating constipation and all these other things caused by it showed remarkable improvement right away. By now I feel so good that I can't remember when I felt like this before. My stomach feels so rested that my nervousness is gone, and this lets me get a good night's sleep again. It's a great feeling to be rid of those gases and acids and since those headaches went away I feel spry and cheerful again. I can do my housework fine now and feel I owe this to World's Tonic. You can depend on me to tell all my friends about it too."

World's Tonic is good for young and old. It contains no habit forming drugs or narcotics. Get World's Tonic at Central and all other modern Drug Stores. (E 51)—Adv.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1939.

An interesting phase of the Jesse James motion picture is the way he escapes on his high-powered horse.

It's getting so the average person isn't much disturbed when the government spends another billion dollars—as long as he didn't help earn it.

With Washington's birthday falling on Wednesday, followed quickly by the Saturday holiday, something can surely be done about the intervening Thursday and Friday.

Tax-Burdened Motorists.
SPEED with which automobiles have changed from a luxury of the rich to a necessity for millions, is seen in a computation of the American Petroleum Industries committee, which places the average value of all passenger automobiles in the United States at $197 each.

When it is taken into account that this average value represents only about eight weeks wages of the average American factory worker, it is seen that automobile ownership does not evidence the affluence that it once did.

Yet taxes are imposed on motorists as if they, as a class, were wealthy and possessed unusual ability to pay. The gasoline tax and other levies against motorists now average 27 per cent of the value of the typical car.

While the price of gasoline has been steadily decreasing during the past 13 years, the tax on gasoline is now more than three times as much as in 1926—being equivalent to a 38½ per cent sales tax on one of the essential needs of the average American family.

Common-Sense Mothers-In-Law.
PRESS of weighty and alarming domestic and foreign affairs resulted in Mother-in-law Day almost escaping notice. But the action of the newly formed Mother-in-law Association of New York City drew attention and saved the day.

As a part of their very first business the mothers-in-law rejected a resolution calling on entertainers in all fields to "refrain in the future from all jibes and sallies aimed at the mother-in-law. Apparently it's all right with these women if entertainers poke fun at them. They have a genuine sense of humor which can survive, and laugh at, some of the jokes. Furthermore, mothers-in-law seem to believe in freedom of speech, even at their own expense. After all, a mother-in-law is a woman who has raised at least one child to maturity. She can be conscious of a job well done and need not fuss about a little joshing.

There must be millions of mothers-in-law in this country who know they have the respect and affection of their sons-in-law or daughters-in-law, not to mention devoted grandchildren. That's a good antidote for stale and outmoded jokes.

Dancing, Crazy and Sane.
THE public is edified, or at least pepped up, by the announcement of new dances. Notable among them is "The Injun," said to be sweeping down from Canada. It is described as "built around the idea of an Indian buying a radio, tuning in on Harlem and getting swing." Obviously something can be done about that. A New York expert pronounces it "a very gay dance and much fun to do."

Another dance dawning on the horizon is the "Black Pool Walk," a British importation and said to be "peppier and cuter than the Lambeth." The latter, by the way, was danced lately in Rome at the ball given by Mussolini to Prime Minister Chamberlain, and participated in, to his own perplexity and horror, by the solemn head of the official Fascist party. But the Lambeth is considered not peppy enough now for young people, and the Black Pool is adapted to "a younger, more spirited generation of walkers."

Along with this spirited walking, however, more staid dancers will be reassured by the announcement that there is a remarkable revival of interest in old-time dances such as the plain quadrille, the waltz quadrille and the waltz minuet.

Toy Trade Shifts.
SANTA CLAUS seems to be down on dictators. Business statisticians find that Japan lost 60 per cent of its Christmas trade in this last holiday season, and Germany lost 20 per cent, as compared with 1937. The net result was that the American people spent only $1,700,000 abroad for toys last Christmas, against $3,422,000 the year before. Some of this drop was due to worse times, but most of it probably came from the growing disfavor in this country for Asiatic and European dictatorships.

Meanwhile we sold abroad twice as many toys as we bought. The chief customers were Canada, Great Britain, South Africa, Cuba and Australia, in the order named. It is natural to have a particularly friendly feeling for these Christmas customers. It means that they and their children like the same kinds of toys we do.

An Awakening Nation.
WE AMERICANS may not know where we're going, but we're certainly on our way. Dr. Allan A. Stockdale, speakers' bureau chief for the National Manufacturers association, says:

"After traveling all over the country, I can report a vastly different America from that of six months ago. Its citizens are awakening rapidly. The great body of silent citizens are beginning to be stirred up, and when that stirring is fully accomplished we need have no fear of the future."

"For the next few years we must develop our best sense of humor. Most of the things some of us get mad about are just funny. We've got to laugh at them."

"We can't believe the United States can go very far wrong—it is always in the hands of some group of reformers. All things considered, there is no reason for pessimism."

The New Hampshire legislature has voted against substituting the electric chair for the gallows—apparently with the idea of letting bad enough alone.

A Boston doctor says delirium tremens victims do not see elephants any more—possibly because circus parades have become uncommon.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — An irritated senator once bounded from his seat and with deep sarcasm growled:

"Why don't we adjourn and let the country be run according to the way these public polls say the people want it?"

The intent was to indicate that a really worthwhile senator would scoff at polls and vote his own best judgment. Many of them perhaps do just that. But in our buffeting about among the congressmen we have gleaned a definite impression that when a reliable public poll indicates the country's sentiment on any particular question, the members pay heed.

"They are governed by polls more than they will admit," said one member.

But most members keep fairly good polls of their own—particularly covering their sections. They have to. It is their staff of life. So it would be faulty to say that every time a member voted according to the Gallup poll, for instance, he was being governed by the poll.

Connally Says Yes—And No.
AMONG others we questioned about polls was Senator Tom Connally of Texas.

"Of course I take these polls into consideration," he said. "I don't rely on them altogether. I use them right along with other information I have as to what my constituents want."

He added, however, that he would not be completely guided by either if they conflicted with his own judgment.

Then he mentioned the supreme court bill.

"When it first came out the majority of the people were for it. It was proposed by the president and they trusted him."

"But I disagreed with it then and I was glad when the polls and my own information indicated the people had come around to our view of the bill." The "our view" to which he referred was that of the majority of the senate which ultimately spelled defeat for the legislation.

Congressmen are fairly well aware of public sentiment even without polls. Probably they always have been. But if they had always been completely subject to its influence we probably would have been a member of the League of Nations.

The 'Little Group.'
EVEN that group of senators whom President Wilson called a "little group of wilful men" will admit now that the country was overwhelmingly for entry into the League of Nations.

This "little group" stalled off a vote on the issue for months while they "carried the issue to the country." They ultimately swayed public sentiment—and a majority of the senate—to their way of thinking, and league adherence was defeated.

Moreover, some members are skeptical of the complete accuracy of the public polls, particularly upon such questions as "do you favor continued public spending for recovery?" and issues of similar complexity and vagueness.

Some members, like Connally, use the polls as a guide. Others are frankly opposed to them. They suspect that an early publication of a poll of public sentiments on some particular issue might swing a lot of "bandwagon" support to it before the opposing side had a chance to present its case. And it isn't fun for congressmen to have to vote against public opinion.

Byrd Machine Strong In Virginia

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt picked a hard nut to crack when he attempted to undermine the Harry Byrd machine in Virginia. All the reports from the Old Dominion since the president's letter which followed the rejection of Floyd Roberts to be a federal judge indicate that sentiment favors Senators Carter Glass and Byrd rather than the president.

In Virginia there is a slightly different view of this battle than is evidenced by editorialists from newspapers in other sections. For example it is more keenly appreciated in Virginia just what the president was trying to do. Everybody all over the country understands that he was trying, by making this appointment, to undermine the Virginia senators, possibly make it easier to defeat them when they come up for re-election.

But what is clearer in Virginia than elsewhere is that the president was trying to do this by building up a rival political organization headed by Governor James H. Price. Of course, anyone who thought a moment would know that there is no use trying to beat any particular politician, is of little avail unless the effort is also calculated to strengthen a rival. This is particularly true when it comes to an organization, as contrasted with a candidate who may go far on his own popularity. Thus when the candidate's popularity is hurt, he is weakened, even if no opponent is strengthened. But when the head of an organization is attacked, he is not hurt much unless some rival for the leadership of that same organization or some leader of a rival organization, is helped.

EVERYONE in Virginia knows that Governor Price won the Democratic gubernatorial primary without Senator Byrd's help. In fact he won it against Senator Byrd's opposition due to a combination of circumstances.

So that Governor Price became a very real threat against the Byrd leadership the day Price was nominated back in 1937.

On that basis, it would seem smart presidential politics, with Senator Byrd so hostile to the administration, and with Byrd coming up for re-election in 1940, for the White House to play ball with the governor, who had announced himself as a New Dealer.

But the White House advisers ignored, or didn't bother to inform themselves, about happenings in Virginia last year. One thing they couldn't help knowing was—though they might minimize it—the very bad beating which Representative Howard W. Smith gave to William E. Dodd, Jr., son of the former ambassador to Germany. Young Dodd ran as an avowed New Dealer, bucking Smith because the congressman had opposed the president on many issues in the house rules committee. In fact support of the administration was his only issue.

He was beaten three to one, the Byrd machine backing Smith. On the same day a sitting congressman, representing the Norfolk district, was defeated by a Byrd man, and the defeated congressman made the defeat spectacular by his insistence, on the stump, that he was being opposed by Byrd's friends because he had supported Roosevelt.

MEANWHILE in Roanoke, Norfolk, Richmond, and elsewhere in the state there was violent opposition by the newspapers to the president's efforts to "purge" Senators Walter George of Georgia, E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, and Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland.

Altogether it became increasingly clear that the state was strongly behind its senators, notwithstanding it had nominated a governor two years before who was not friendly to them.

There is no sort of necessity, nor emergency that demands the impairment of our patrimony. Every southern or western state is able to meet the necessities of all its inhabitants who are capable of taking care of themselves.

If New York and a few other big cities are so poverty-stricken, weak and incapable that they are not able to take care of their "needy," let them take the pauper's oath and throw themselves on public charity. The south and west may be counted on to take care of their own, and, in addition, contribute whatever is necessary to meet the needs of the unfortunate in the obsolescent cities.

This would relieve the mayor of New York, who has qualified as the champion beggar of all time, from wearing out any more "brogans" in running to Washington for charity. Both his feet and his lungs need a long, quiet rest.

The government has no money, and produces no wealth. But it exercises the power of taking money from one group and giving it to another. With few exceptions, the wealth represented by the money borrowed has been consumed, destroyed in non-productive consumption, as the consumption of coal in a locomotive, new wealth is produced that is at least equal to the wealth consumed. In non-productive consumption, as relief and valueless activities, the wealth consumed leaves practically no wealth behind. From the point of view of reproduction it is so much wealth destroyed, and hence a total material loss to the patrimony of the country.

How any self-respecting farmer, or any other individual or group can seek or accept special aid from the government under the present untoward conditions is difficult to understand. How any state, city, town, community or group of educators can appeal for help from the federal government when it is well known to them that such aid is obtained at the price of a mortgage chained to the necks of unborn babies is almost beyond human comprehension.

What Is Your Salt Lick?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU'LL see many a strange happening out on the range, but none more curious than a file of cattle heading toward some distant salt lick. There's a sermon on hoofs you'll do well to remember!

If you're a stranger, it may puzzle you at first—the sight of those plodding brutes, lumbering along, seemingly without aim, yet never deviating from some secret, fixed intention. You'll wonder what they're after. Nothing in sight. Far as the eye can see land lies still and empty, its golden glaze unmarred by rock or tree or bush. No water calls them . . . no gush of greenness marks a meeting place. Yet on they go, across the trackless miles, as if their very life depended on the search. It does! They're after salt. Miles mean nothing when the salt need comes.

Not much to look at—a salt lick. Just a pile of rough, grayish block . . . worn down by the eager tongue, renewed by the cowboys on their rounds. Yet the life of the herd lies in those blocks. Give cattle their fill of the sweetest water and the choicest grass, yet, lacking salt, their strength will slough away. So will a man's. Men have waged wars, massacred tribes, to obtain possession of some salt center . . . swapped jewels and blooded horses, bars of gold—and wives!—for handfuls of the grayish mineral, in their desperate need.

Men must have salt. Not only for their bodies but, even more urgently, for their minds and characters. Our spirits need harsh hazards, vitalizing risks . . . something to balance the demoralizing sugars and fats of soft, easy lives. Without such hazards and hardships, something vital to the soul sloughs away.

You can see it happening in cities where people lead standardized lives with mass-protection, mass-education, mass-pleasure. No character can stay sane or vigorous in such a regime. Slowly but surely it becomes flabby and diseased. . . .

EACH HUMAN NEEDS A SALT-LICK . . . SOME DIFFICULT MANUAL OR MENTAL TASK WHICH WILL CHALLENGE HIS MUSCLES AND HIS MIND.

It is not enough to be safe, industrious, law-abiding . . . it is not enough to have a pleasant home, loving friends, a fair job. None of these things will keep a man happy or proud or healthy. There must be something DIFFICULT in his life . . . something as rough and vital as salt . . . something hard and humiliating. Something that will sting his conceit and stir his indifference into new hunger and health.

"Yes," you say, "that's Big Talk—but how can the average fellow apply it to his life? Take a city man or woman . . . they can't go pioneering . . . they can't go around starting 'harsh hazards' or they'll be run in! So what! How're you going to put 'challenges and risks' into a paper-hanger's day or a housewife's or a mail man's?"

In dozens of ways! Any one of which is guaranteed to make you feel like a dented nickel—and prove your soul's salvation. How about a correspondence course in . . .

Everyday Poem
—By GEORGE ELLISTON
When Truth Is Hatelul
When truth is hateful, shall we speak
The words or shall we let
The silence tell just what it will
On kindness bent, forget?

Is this a compromise with truth?
And can we censured be
For taking thus a bypath, not
The path of honesty?

Sometimes truth is too hard a thing
For human hearts to bear,
Too stark in some distressing time
Of weariness or care.

Then ease the bitterness, I say,
Then let the spoken word
Be gentle and the pain of truth's
Sharp telling be deferred.

A Farmer's Diary

Winter Plowing.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

BUT few times in my life have I seen so much snow plowed under as this season. For the past two months, even when the drifts were several inches deep, my neighbor has been plowing. A week ago I saw his three dark horses prancing and frisking about as he turned the first furrow that morning.

Their nostrils were open wide, and frost was on the long hairs about their noses and on the metal of the bridles.

Behind the plow the farmer followed closely, with the lines across one shoulder and beneath the other arm. He was young and strong and tramped along easily in heavy boots, burdened with sticky clay.

The earth beneath the snow was moist, loose and unfrozen. The freezes of December had thawed under the warm protecting blanket and left the soil in splendid shape. When the farmer turned his team and drew northward from the roadside, I watched the dark, heavy furrow slice turn slowly and bury deep the hard, glittering coat of snow.

I stopped my car and jumped over the fence, landing deep in a drift. I stamped off the snow and walked over to the newly-made furrow. I marveled at the depth it seemed from the surface of the snow to the rift the share had made. As I measured, I took some of the earth into my hand and made a mud ball. It seemed warm and pleasant, compared to the air above. The decaying mold of the turf, the white wormlike rootlets, tinged with the deeper soil, bore a pleasant fragrance to my nostrils.

When the farmer made the second round, I saw the black birds following some distance after in the furrow, busily feasting upon the cocoons of grubs, unwary cut worms—even an occasional angle worm.

"I'll have seventy acres plowed by the first of April," my neighbor said. "A man can get a running start at his work this year."

PAINT-STYLING ON BUDGET PLAN FOR NEW HOMES

Dwelling Decorating Jobs on Time Payments Possible, Contractors Say.

DENVER, Colo.—"New homes at old addresses are yours for the asking," according to Henry Afman, president of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America. Even though it may not be possible to have the brand-new modern house of which many of us dream, it is, Mr. Afman points out, definitely possible to turn houses into homes in a new way—a way that starts with what we have and not what we hope to have. How can this be done? "By paint and painting," states Afman, "—by the utilization of what we call styling with paint."

What is styling? "Styling with paint," explains the trade association head, "consists of selecting colors that are currently popular and using them in painting the exterior or interior of a house in a manner that follows the current trends in painting. These trends are known to painting and decorating contractors by means of surveys of what colors are being used in various parts of the country on various types of newly constructed houses and in various types of new rooms."

In creating "new homes for old" by the use of paint, the greatest satisfaction to the owner and the most harmonious result will be obtained by a complete job for both the exterior and interior, Afman points out. A good exterior paint job, he stresses, will include not only the house but the detached garage, the fences and any other smaller buildings on the property.

"From the standpoint of styling," says Afman, "bright color contrasts should be employed for the shutters, the front door, the gate. These are details I would like to emphasize because today it is the fashion to paint the rest of the outside trim—except perhaps the window sashes—the same color as the body of the house."

"Perhaps you say that you would like nothing better than to modernize your old home with paint—provided you could afford it. Nowadays you need not hesitate—you can buy painting and decorating jobs on a time payment plan—the same sort of plan which you use to buy automobiles, refrigerators, radios, vacuum cleaners—and, as a matter of fact, all your other necessities and many of your luxuries."

"It is no longer necessary to pay the contractor in a lump sum upon the completion of a painting and decorating job. Arrangements can be made for having such work done without a down payment—with monthly installments of a small amount each month. The rate of interest is extremely low—and there is no red tape—nothing at all complicated."

Spring Colors Suggested For Bath Remodeling

Spring colors for the bathroom! Cool greens and lavenders, soft ivories and yellows, tasteful blues and pinks.

These are some of the shades in which plumbing fixtures are available for the home-owner who wishes to bring his family bathroom up to the 1936 standard of colorful convenience and efficiency.

Modern plumbing fixtures, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau points out, are characterized by their glistening streamlined beauty, the ease with which they may be kept clean, and their artistic design.

No longer purely utilitarian, the plumbing fixtures of 1936 have the distinction of color and form which makes the bathroom the most beautiful room in the house. Available for the spring modernizing project are complete color ensembles harmonizing perfectly in design. These are matched sets of fixtures made to "go together." They reflect the modern trend toward unity in home decorating.

Available, too, are many new and strikingly beautiful wall and floor materials which serve as a background for the modern fixtures. These new and inexpensive materials are washable and can be kept as clean as the fixtures themselves.

HOMES

Plans And Estimates

Simple design and arrangement lift this small home out of the realm of commonplace and make it an attractive and highly livable dwelling. The house is situated in New Sheffield, Pa., where it was built with the assistance of a $4,800 mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration. The property was valued at $5,775. Among the features of the house are unusual fenestration, effective doorway and entrance, fireplace and attached garage.

ATTENTION SHOULD BE GIVEN EVERY ROOM IN HOME PLANNING

In plans for building a new home, every room should receive careful attention. A house to be lived in for many years should have no weak points.

Before a new home may be financed under the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration, it must meet certain standards of location, design and construction. These standards assure sound value and protect both mortgagor and mortgagee.

The suitability of a particular house can be decided only by a particular family. Too often a prospective builder or purchaser considers only the living room, the required number of bedrooms, and adequate closet space in determining the suitability of a home. Sometimes this is enough. But in most cases the routine of daily living emphasizes the need for other considerations.

In every home the family spends some part of every day in the dining room. It is a room frequently used for entertaining. Yet it is often dismissed from careful planning.

The following check list contains suggestions which will help to assure the comfort and usefulness of a dining room:

Is there enough provision for heat to assure comfortable dining in the coldest weather?

Will the windows admit sufficient air and sunshine and at the same time maintain a certain amount of privacy for the occupants of the room?

Is there easy access to the kitchen, and can the room be protected from the view of strangers who might arrive while the family is dining?

Is the finish of walls and floors

the type that will clean easily? Are the arrangements for artificial lighting adequate and can either bright or dim lights be provided according to the choice of the family? Are there outlets for electrical appliances used at the table? Is there provision for suitable storing of linens and china and glass reserves?

CHEERFUL NURSERY Cheerful as sunshine is the atmosphere of a nursery with walls and woodwork painted a warm cream color and the floor, azure blue. The large play table, toy chest and cabinet are painted blue like the floor, a small table and chair are the same cream as the walls. A cream-colored rug with Noah's Ark figures in it is spread at one end of the room for the children to sit on.

REA BROADENS PLUMBING FIELD

Rapid Advance of Country Electrification Creates Wider Market.

A sales potential of 5,000,000 plumbing fixtures in rural areas within the next few years as a result of the rapid advance of rural electrification was described by W. E. Price, Indiana plumbing wholesaler, in an address at a recent convention of the plumbing industry.

Price declared that rural electrification is creating a "new frontier" for the plumbing industry. "There are approximately 6 million farm homes in the United States," said the speaker. "Less than 15 per cent have running water; less than 10 per cent have plumbing fixtures. The REA proposes within the next few years to have electricity in 50 per cent of these homes."

"The installation of an electric water system in a country home means, so far as a prospective sale of plumbing fixtures is concerned, the same thing as building a new home."

"The installation of a bathroom in the farm home means also the installation of a radiator heating

OUTLINE WINTER BUILDING HINTS

Housing Administration Gives Recommended Practices for Cold Weather.

Since an unusually large volume of winter residential construction is anticipated for the coming months, the Federal Housing Administration has outlined a number of recommended practices for cold-weather building.

Work requiring the use of cement, if carried on during freezing temperatures, should be done preferably when the temperature is rising. A number of safeguards may be applied to most types of dwelling construction, which will result in sound building despite unfavorable weather conditions.

Points to be noted in concrete construction include: Preheat the aggregates and the water used in the mix. Pour concrete immediately and then protect by covering with straw and tarpaulins or waterproof paper.

Never preheat the cement used in the mix. Clean ice, snow, or frost from all forms before pouring concrete.

If bottom of trench is frozen never pour concrete into trench.

plant to prevent freezing of the plumbing equipment."

Price stressed the fact that water systems are the key to plumbing sales in the rural area. "The farmer can't enjoy the convenience of modern plumbing equipment until he has a dependable pumping system."

Make certain ground is completely thawed. Calcium chloride may be used but only as an accelerator to the hardening process. Preheating of the mix is advisable in connection with all pouring when temperature reaches 40 degrees or less. Do not remove forms until concrete has set thoroughly. A test to determine if concrete is frozen may be made by applying heat to the surface by means of a blowtorch or by pouring hot water on the surface. Frozen concrete will soften as it thaws. If properly hardened, it will remain hard. If the temperature falls below 40 degrees while masonry work is being done, the aggregate and water used in the mortar should be preheated. The masonry units should also be preheated and should not be wetted before laying. Freedom Of Engaged Couples

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For about a year I've been engaged to a young lady who thinks it's all right for her to go out with other boys once in a while or go to dances without me. I think an engaged person has certain responsibilities, but she does not agree. She says she's in love with me, and I know I am with her.

UNCERTAIN.

I am told that many modern young couples share your fiancée's idea. It's all very well, as long as both the engaged persons are equally modern, for there must be agreement between them on this point. If your girl friend wants to go out with other boys, knowing that you do not approve, I should say you ought to have an understanding.

Before marriage I think each one of you should be thoroughly certain of the other's love, as well as of the other's unwillingness to inflict pain or sorrow. Otherwise, marriage is a big risk.

"Not one," I said. "Indeed, I should prefer tomorrow to any later day."

"Then we will say tomorrow," he said. "I shall stay in the city tonight, and will call for you tomorrow forenoon at your convenience."

"Would eight o'clock be too early for you to start?" he asked with perceptible hesitation in his voice.

"I much prefer that hour," I said. "I am an early riser, anyway, and a start at eight will give me that much longer with the children."

"I had thought of that," he said, a bit smugly, and I felt perversely like shouting at him, "You did no such thing!" as if I were an ill-mannered child. But, instead, I said demurely: "That was most considerate," and smiled most saccharine at him as he rose and extended his hand to me.

"Good-bye," he said, then he turned to his young daughter-in-law. He took her hand in his, drew her to him and kissed her paternally.

"Good-bye, my dear child," he said. "I should advise a little mild dissipation like a dinner and a play. You have a faithful duenna here, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," Mary answered, smiling at him. "But I don't think I'll take in any play tonight. I might be tempted to look at a matinee tomorrow, if Miss Whitlock feels like going. But tonight it's going to be little Mary for the day."

"Then, permit me to wish you pleasant dreams," he said with another apparently affectionate smile, and Mary kept her pretty little quirked up in an answering smile until he had bowed himself out of the door and it had closed after him. Then she dashed at me and took me by the shoulders. "Tell me this second what this all means!" she demanded, but I reached up my hand and put my fingers on her lips.

"Careful!" I whispered. "Wait until we hear the elevator!"

Miss Whitlock had come into the living room, and we all listened tensely until the elevator had risen to our floor, stopped and descended again. But as Mary was about to speak again, I signaled for the nurse's attention.

"Please go out into the hall," I whispered, "and ring the elevator bell, whether there is anyone standing there or not. Ask the boy to bring us a dinner menu, and then come back in here."

"Okay," she whispered back, and went directly to the door. The fraction of a second after she had opened it Philip Veritzen's voice came to our ears.

"Oh! I hope your pardon," he said. "I do I hope I did not hurt you."

Stirring Entertainment.

It is too bad that 20th-Century-Fox saw fit to call its excellent film "Jesse James," by that title, because some other name would have suited it as well and there wouldn't have been the kick-back about falsifying history, movie critics claim. The film would have been just as entertaining, just as thrilling by any other name. The title character has little in common with America's most spectacular bad man. But it is good drama and has plenty of human interest which originated with the scenarist and not Mrs. James' bad boys. Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Randolph Scott and Nancy Kelly are starred. It's at the Ohio through Friday.

D'Arcy a Newcomer.

Alexander D'Arcy, a newcomer in pictures, who has a major role in "Topper Takes a Trip," looks like promising material for the screen and you can expect to hear—and see—more of him in future films. He plays the baron in this story of a meek little banker who goes on a spree in Paris. Constance Bennett encourages the spree while Billie Burke, as the wife, has more than misgivings. The comedy is the Madison attraction through Wednesday.

Victor Moore Starred.

Victor Moore, rotund comedian who is currently starring in a Broadway success, is the hero of "This Marriage Business," one of the Park features for Wednesday only. Victor is seen as a country clerk who rides to sudden fame when a newspaperman writes him up as having issued marriage licenses for 20 years with never a divorce following. Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to cure it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk!" And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Get All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and join the Regulars! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

tie theme. "Cock of the Air," one of the early Howard Hughes air pictures, will also be shown.

Two Attractions.

Two top ranking attractions make up the Ritz program for Wednesday and Thursday. There will be Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis and Cesar Romero in "My Lucky Star," and Margaret Sullivan, James Stewart and Walter Pidgeon in "Shopworn Angel." The latter is a story of a beautiful but hard-boiled glamor girl who found love when it was too late. Stewart is the country boy who met the "angel" on his day of leave just before his troop sailed for France and the war.

California in Technicolor.

California in color is something to make the state chamber of commerce happy, for it gives beauty to the country that is not found in black and white films. "Gold Is Where You Find It" was filmed in natural colors, with the blue mountains, the yellow wheat fields and sparkling mountain streams brought realistically to every person who sees the film. George Brent and Olivia de Havilland manage to find romance despite the feud between them. Also on the Majestic screen is "White New York Sleeps."

Don't think you have to wait until Easter to get those huge lilies which take their name from this season. They are usually available throughout the year.

Dull oilcloth can be freshened by washing it with a preparation made of equal parts of raw linseed oil and vinegar, shaken well together, or a mixture of turpentine and linseed oil. It will look like new.

Comfortable Where Most Pumps Hurt! The patented flexible insole of Tongo Pumps makes them so amazingly easy on the feet... so delightfully pleasant to wear... that you'll simply want to live in Tongo!

Relishes Pick-Up Meal

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

NOTHING like handing round attractive relishes and garnishes to give a lift to a meal which the home-maker considers not up to par. And by the same token, such relishes and garnishes even add to the finest meal, especially when they are home-made. Today we give you some spicy items to add zest and piquancy to your menus.

Spiced Prune Garnish requires one and one-half cups granulated sugar, one and one-half cups hot water, one piece of stick cinnamon, 12 whole cloves, 12 large prunes soaked in cold water and six lettuce cups. Combine sugar, water, spices, and heat to boiling point. Add prunes, cover and cook until tender (about 20 minutes). Remove prunes from syrup and cool slightly. Carefully remove the stones. Place two or three prunes on each lettuce cup and arrange on platter around meat loaf or other meat dish.

Cinnamon Relish

Cinnamon Orange Slices come next, and very good they are, too! Recipe calls for one and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup water, juice of a lemon, two cinnamon sticks and three oranges. Make a syrup of sugar, water, juice and cinnamon. Wash oranges and cut them in thick slices. Place in hot syrup and boil gently without covering, until rind is clear. Chill in syrup before serving as meat garnish.

For Pineapple Paprika, drain juice from canned pineapple slices. Dip slices on flour and fry quickly on both sides in butter. Sprinkle liberally with paprika and serve with roast meats. Canned pears and peaches may be prepared the same way. This is a good emergency dish, we've discovered.

Spiced Bananas.

Spiced Bananas make an excellent accompaniment to meat. The recipe requires three-quarters cup vinegar, two dozen whole cloves, two and one-half cups sugar, one small stick cinnamon and three bananas. Boil vinegar, sugar, cloves and cinnamon until sugar is dissolved and the syrup thick. Drop the bananas (strips or quarters) into the hot syrup and boil for two minutes. Remove from fire and cool.

Apple sauce is always welcome, especially in this de luxe version to serve with pork. It calls for one heaping cup of chopped apples, one tablespoon arrowroot, tablespoon of lemon juice, few grains of salt, grated rind of a lemon, one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon, two pinches of nutmeg, and one-half cup cold water. Put chopped apples in a saucepan. Add arrowroot, salt, lemon juice, lemon rind, cinnamon, nutmeg and cold water. Cook all together for 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Strain and serve with pork.

CHAPTER XXV

They smiled at each other. Alix said: "You'll have to be very good indeed if I don't think you are quite that good."

The next morning Jay saw her swimming in the clear blue water of the pool, swimming away from him.

When she dressed for dinner that evening, Bernice came in.

"Did you meet Jay? Isn't he attractive?"

The motion of the silver brush ceased. Looking through the mirror, Alix's eyes were amused.

"Yes, very attractive but he gave you away. He said he'd been appointed to make me forget somebody."

Bernice put her arm around her.

"On guilty, darling. But don't scold me for thinking of you. He's handsome, well-born, wealthy and amusing. I know he isn't as handsome as Kurt. But give Jay a chance. Alix. He came down from New York just to meet you. I'm not matchmaking, dear. I'd just like to see you interested in some young man."

Music from the club house drifted out to the veranda where Alix's silver dress glistened in the pale light, where bronzed Jay Harvey stood over her.

"You don't drink or smoke, Alix. What do you do?"

"Neither do I play golf nor ride nor drive a car. When you were learning to do those things, Jay, I was learning to take shorthand at so many words a minute."

"So Bernice told me. I'll be here about a week and I'll teach you how to play golf and drive a car and ride. I'm generous but not too generous. I'll expect something in return."

"What, for instance?"

He smiled. "Just don't treat me as if I were ten miles away. You weren't dancing with me a little while ago. You were dancing with—whomever he is. Why doesn't he do something about it? Where are his eyes? If you were crazy about me."

He put his arm around her.

"Forget him. You were like a sculptured girl today sitting beside the pool. And my imagination, which never needs much encouragement, began to see us together a lot, here, in New York, and in Palm Beach next winter. Does that sound as good to you as it does to me or—shall we go in and dance some more?"

"Let's dance some more. I want to dance with my brother later. He's just learning to dance. Nancy is teaching him. When I go over to the cottage I usually find the radio turned on and I'm walking all over Nancy's little feet and both of them laughing at his clumsiness."

With her head on his shoulder, she closed her eyes. But it was not bronzed, good-looking Jay Harvey with whom she was dancing.

It was Kurt, and time had rolled back and it was that snowy night in March the first time she had seen him and had hoped that by summer they would never be separated again.

Outside the door of her room Jay said, "It's been a swell night and a swell day, Alix." He put her hand to his lips. "I can try, can't I? And I can think about Palm Beach in the winter and dancing with you in several places in New York. Say you."

"I like you, Jay."

"Good. You'll like me better. And tomorrow morning after a swim you're going to get your first lesson in driving. Good night, darling."

As she went into her room and took the light silver wrap from her shoulders, she thought, "By September I'll have to know whether it's going to be Chicago and marriage with Eddie or Palm Beach and New York and Jay and young men like Jay."

Alix saw Jay Harvey to the station ten days later.

"Thank you," she said, "for teaching me to drive, to play golf, and to ride. It's been a merry ten days, hasn't it, Jay?"

"And you've been a very apt pupil. But all the things I taught you are for Palm Beach next winter."

She smiled. "I don't know about that. Good-bye, Jay."

He took her hand. "You've been a great little pal, darling. But think about Palm Beach and think about me. And you might even try thinking about—us."

Don and Bernice and another couple were playing bridge in the drawing-room when she returned to Ivy House. She hurried through the hall and went upstairs to her own room and went out on the balcony and stood in the cool darkness. And again, as she had so many times, she thought that in spite of the kindnesses, kindness and generosity she was alone and useless and alien in their world.

And again though she tried to face her future honestly, there was still too much chaos in her mind and feelings. "I have a few weeks yet to make up my mind whether or not to marry a boy I don't love but a boy who is, next to Kurt, best for me. Oh, but why do I think of Kurt? He's married. He hasn't tried to see any of us. Why does he always have to come between me and the plans I try to make for myself?"

The next day Bernice announced that she and Don were going to a northern resort for three weeks. To Alix she said, "You're going too, darling. If you think we're going to leave you alone again."

"And added, smiling, as she left the room, 'Jay will be there.'"

They left within the week and motored north, arriving late one night at a large hotel at a fashionable summer colony by the sea. Alix's room overlooked the sea and when Bernice kissed her good night and said, "You're going to have a marvelous time, darling," Alix went to the French windows and opened them and stood very still looking at the sea.

Funny, she thought, that neither time nor distance altered that one thing in her heart—her love for Kurt. That was something that nothing or no one could ever take away from her, though her life was different and moved at a fast, unpredictable pace now.

What would happen here? Jay was here, gay and charming and lightly in love with her. Jay and other young men. And Bernice, because she loved her, wanted for her a brilliant and successful marriage. She would consider her job incomplete until that was accomplished. Hence this trip far from home, far from Kurt, far from scenes that reminded her of him.

They had breakfast in the large, cool dining room.

Bernice said, "Don and I used to come here often and know scores of people here. We're going to look up some people after breakfast. Do you want to come with us, Alix, or would you rather go swimming? You'll probably see Jay on the beach. His mother is one of the people upon whom I'm going to call. She has a house here." Then she laughed at Don.

"Of course Don thinks Mrs. Harvey is one of the most formidable women he's ever known. But she's charming, really."

"I like you, Jay."

"Good. You'll like me better. And tomorrow morning after a swim you're going to get your first lesson in driving. Good night, darling."

"Thank you," she said, "for teaching me to drive, to play golf, and to ride. It's been a merry ten days, hasn't it, Jay?"

"Good. You'll like me better. And tomorrow morning after a swim you're going to get your first lesson in driving. Good night, darling."

As she went into her room and took the light silver wrap from her shoulders, she thought, "By September I'll have to know whether it's going to be Chicago and marriage with Eddie or Palm Beach and New York and Jay and young men like Jay."

Alix saw Jay Harvey to the station ten days later.

"Thank you," she said, "for teaching me to drive, to play golf, and to ride. It's been a merry ten days, hasn't it, Jay?"

Alix said, "I think I'll swim— if you don't mind."

Wearing a blue satin bathing suit with a kerchief tied beneath her chin, she was sitting on the white sand when Jay found her. There was no mistaking the delight in the gay, dark eyes.

"Alix!" And dropped on the sand beside her. "When . . . Where . . . Oh, but that doesn't matter. You're here!" He laughed. "And there's another point. How am I going to keep you to myself?"

"How do you know you want to?"

Suddenly his eyes were gay no longer. Looking at her directly, he said, "I've known I wanted to keep you to myself ever since I saw you sitting on the edge of the pool at Ivy House. You were the loveliest girl I'd ever seen. But later I learned that your loveliness wasn't the most important thing about you but your, well, your honesty, your sweetness . . ."

Other supplies distributed in January included 9,632 cans of grapefruit juice, 1,838 pounds of beans, 3,514 pounds of prunes, 1,788 pounds of raisins, 1,959 pounds of peaches, 3,224 pounds of cereal, and 7,080 pounds of corn meal.

The county spent $258 to distribute the supplies which represented transportation and handling charges. The food is provided by the federal government which purchases surplus produce from farmers, orchardists and gardeners. Sam Williams is in charge of distribution in the county.

FALLS 80 FEET, LIVES SANDUSKY—(AP)—Cal, a small building, plunged from a roof of a building—a distance of 80 feet—and lived to bark about it. The dog coughed a few times, inhaled a few deep breaths and was as good as ever.
